DENY RACE WRIT

DEFENDANTS TO APPEAL CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Judge Buck Denies Writ In Tanforan Racing Case

Judge Buck on Saturday issued a denial of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for James McDonald, stock salesman and race horse man arrested for violation of the gambling laws of the statae at Tanforan. The case against McDonald was heard before Judge Buck on August 25 at which time it was submitted on briefs. The case was in the nature of a test of the California laws against race horse gambling and is being watched with interest by racing interests throughout the state. It will no doubt be taken to a higher court by the defendant.

McDonald was arrested at the Tanforan race track by Sheriff J. J. McGrath and charged with gambling. The arrest had been arranged before hand by officials of the racing club in order to test the law before the courts. McDonald volunteered to be the one arrested. Sheriff McGrath was notified, and when he arrived he found McDonald conducting a regular sporting event.

McDonald was taken into custody and was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Rudolph Rapsey. Following the arraignment he was brought to the jail here and held in lieu of $100 cash bail which he refused to post. He was later released by a writ of habeas corpus on bond after an alternate writ had been secured from Judge Buck by Walter Linforth, attorney for the racing club.

The prosecution was conducted by District Attorney Franklin Swart and his assistant Edmond Scott.

COURT MADRONE FORESTERS PLAN BIG EVENT HERE

LODGE TO CELEBRATE ITS 30th ANNIVERSARY

Special Program Arranged for Event

Plans are complete for a celebration by Court Madrone No. 158, Foresters of America, tomorrow night. A special program has been arranged to take place in the Foresters' hall. A large class of initiates will be inducted into the order by a snappy drill team from the local court. Many visitors are expected for this event. Tuesday marks the 30th anniversary of the founding of the order here.

In its issue of October 2, 1897, the Times-Gazette carried the following item: "A lodge of the American Order of Foresters was instituted in Odd Fellows' hall last Saturday evening. Several grand officers were present and after completing the organization a banquet was served in the hall. The new organization starts with a membership of twenty-seven. There will be several initiations at the next meeting."

Woodside P.-T. A. Home Section Meets

The first home-section meeting of the year was held Tuesday afternoon by the Woodside P. T. A. The hostess were Mrs. Tony Davis and Mrs. E. Bonafant. Plans of study for the coming year ere discussed and the members sewed on articles for their bazaar to be held some time in November.

A report of the card party held Friday evening was given, over $28 being cleared. High scores were made by Wm. Lutze, George Givens, G. Smith, J. V. Neuman, J. C. Jones and Miss Evelyn Meyer; low score by Mrs. Ellinger and the door prize by Mrs. Williamson.

EASTERN STAR CELEBRATES AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Sequoia Chapter Holds Anniversay

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Sequoia Chapter, Order of Eastern Star was fittingly observed at the meeting of the chapter last Monday evening. An unusually large attendance of the members was present, and a special program was enjoyed commemorative of the event.

Following the regular meeting of the chapter, the members sat down to a banquet at tables artistically decorated with silver. A special table was provided for the past matrons and past patrons. George Peterson, patron of the chapter, acted as toastmaster.

A large birthday cake in the form of a star was made for the occasion by the matron, Mrs. Dusel, and was cut by her and passed around to all present. Mrs. J. H. Mansfield, one of the organizers of the chapter and a past matron, was present and gave a short talk on the early days of the chapter.

An interesting feature of th evening was a degree conferred by the corps of Rainbow Girls, an organization of girls from the Richmond district of San Francisco.

WOODSIDE ROAD DISTRICT PLANS IMPROVEMENTS

SOUTH REDWOOD CLUB PROMISED IMPROVEMENTS

Better Conditions for Children Planned

The granting of a number of requests made of the city council by the South Redwood Improvement Club was promised Monday evening to a delegation from the club which attended the meeting of the council. The requests by the club included the rezoning of both sides of the Woodside road, placing this section in the business district, the installation of water mains and electric lights and the opening up of streets to connect this section of the town with other parts west of the highway, especially making it possible for children to reach the new school without having to go to the highway.

Mayor Beeger and the city council promised all these improvements as soon as it would be possible to arrange them. The installation of lights, Mayor Beeger explained, had already been taken up and lights would be placed in the district in December. City Engineer Dimmitt is planning the laying of watermains, and is also making arrangements for the opening up of some of the side streets. The matter of placing the Woodside road in the business district was referred to City Attorney Mansfield.

Mrs. Ellen Biber Appointed to Office

Mrs. Ellen Biber of Burlingame, widow of the late Dr. Paul Biber of that place, was appointed on Monday to the position of secretary of the Social Service Commission of this county. Mrs. Biber succeeds Miss Florence Boggs. The position has been held for a number of years by Miss Boggs, but she has been absent for a year on a leave of absence. She was due to return on the 14th of this month, but when she failed to return the board declared the office vacant and appointed Mrs. Biber.

Mrs. Philip Bray, a member of the evening gymnasium class at the Sequoia Union High School, fell Thursday evening during the class, and received a bad sprain of one of her ankles. Miss Irene Bradley, instructor of the class, applied first aid methods and Drs. Petticord and Clattenburg were called. It is believed that the injury is mostly from strained ligaments, but is is still possible that a small bone in the ankle may be broken.

COASTSIDE TO FIGHT ISSUE PERSISTENTLY

County Dedistricting Temporarily Delayed

The move to have the supervisorial districts of the county reapportioned was delayed this week when Judge A. J. Welch of Santa Clara granted a stay in order that District Attorney Swart might prepare a statement of facts The matter came to trial on Monday following the issuance of an alternate write of mandate ordering the supervisors of this county to reapportion the county according to population, or show cause why they had not done so.

Swart filed a demurrer to the writ. Although Judge Welch did not overrule the demurrer, he indicated that he would proceed to try the case on its merits, providing the attorneys could agree. As no agreement was reached, Judge Welch allowed time for a statement of facts to be prepared and filed.

Swart attacked the writ on the grounds that it had previously been denied by both the superior court and the supreme court. The decision handed down by the latter court made it impossible to file a new petition.

Davis and Attorney Fletcher Cutler contended that the superior court decision only told the petitioners to file a suit first in the superior court of San Mateo county. Judge Buck then denied the petition without prejudice, making it possible for another petition to be filed.

The hearing Monday was another step in the long drawn controversy between residents of the thickly populated sections of the county and the sparcely populated coastside. The matter has been in the public eye for more than two years, but the proponents of redistricting have so far been unsuccessful in their efforts to force the board of supervisors to take the desired action.

Recently a group of business men of Burlingame, through their attorney, John Davis were successful in securing an alternative writ of mandate. The matter has been carried to the courts and Judge Geo. H. Buck of this county asked that the State Judicial Council select some jurist outside of the county to act upon matter. Judge Welch of Santa Clara was named and has had the case under consideration.

Judge Welch in his opinion states that the present district plan of the county was laid out in 1900 when the population of the county was about 12,000. It is now more than 70,000 and the centers of population have changed. The present district plan is not in accord with the present division of population.

The coastside of the county is preparing to fight the proposed change, as a redistricting plan, according to population, would result in the loss to the coastside of one of its representatives.

The coastside was represented at the hearing Monday by John Machado, formerly assistant district attorney of this county and now practicing law in San Jose. Machado was the attorney for the Coastside Civic Union, an organization of coastside residents.

Cable Death Damage Suit Filed Here

$50,355 SOUGHT FOLLOWING DEATH OF BOY IN AUTO

Damage Suit Filed In Superior Court

The death of George Cain, San Francisco youth when he drove his car into a cable stretched across the road at Perry street some months ago, was made the basis for a suit filed this week by Mrs. Belle Cain Martin, mother of the boy. Mrs. Martin asks $50,355 damages in her suit filed against R. E. Johnson, Phil J. Velasco and C. Mills.

The same defendants are named in another suit filed at the same time by Mrs. A. H. Mason for $10,000 for injuries received by her son, Martin Mason, who was with Cain at the time of the accident, and who received severe injuries.

The accident occured on August 2, when Cain turned into Perry street where workmen were at work hoisting a heavy stump into a truck. According to witnesses, a cable was stretched across the street. The driver of the car did not see the cable and drove directly against it. The cable cut through the windshield of the car and struck the two boys. Mason was caught in the mouth. Cain was struck in the chest with such force that his neck was broken.

Cain was taken to the community hospital and later removed to St. Mary's hospital in San Francisco, where he passed away a few days later. An inquest was held in San Francisco at which time the driver of the car was blamed for the accident. The wording of the jury's verdict was in part: "blame was due to the carelessness of the deceased in driving too fast and without proper caution."

Sunday Party Go Over Alpine Grade

When the car in which she was riding with her family plunged over the grade of the Alpine road near La Honda Sunday, Miss Hilda Sweeney, 16-year-old Palo Alto girl, was almost instantly killed. Five other occupants of the car were more or less seriously injured.

The party was returning from a trip to the coast in a car belonging to Gordon Pettibone of this city, in which Pettibone was a passenger. Jack Sweeney, brother of the girl, was driving. While making a turn a tire blew out, throwing the car off its course and precipitating it over a 100-foot bank.

Mrs. R. L. Hill, mother of the dead girl, was seriously injured and was taken to the hospital by passing motorists who took the party to their homes. The other members of the party received less serious injuries.

SAVED FROM BAY

MAN SAVED FROM DROWNING IN BAY

Yacht Trip Results In Near Tragedy

Douglas Boswell, wealthy San Francisco broker, was nearly drowned Monday in the bay near the Dumbarton bridge. Boswell sailed down the bay in his yacht, and anchored it off shore not far from the bridge. He then started to shore in a row boat. As he was rowing ashore, a strong wind came up, and the boat, on which sail had been left, began to drag anchor. Boswell started to return to the boat to furl the sail, but was caught in a sudden swell and his boat capsized. Boswell was accompanied by Dave Heckler and Miss Mary Peterson of Long Beach.

Constable Grill aided in taking Boswell and two others from the water, and by applying first aid, prolonged his life until he was able to rush Boswell to the Redwood City hospital. Physicians said there that he will recover, and was taken to his home in San Francisco yesterday.

FORMER WOODSIDE BOY GOES TO EUROPE

Louis H. Webber To Study Abroad

Louis H. Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Weber of 400 Warren road, San Mateo Park, San Mateo, has been sent by Bishop Cantwell of Los Angeles and San Diego Diocese, to the University of Fribourg, Switzerland, to complete his theological studies. He left Tuesday on the Gold Coast Limited. He will be absent from his native land at least four years.

Young Weber was born in Woodside at the home which was once his grandparents', Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Doyle, now the beautiful Zane place. His parents moved to San Mateo when he was less than two years old.

At the age of fifteen he entered St Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park as he early evinced a desire for the priesthood. He belongs to the Alumni of St. Joseph's College, Los Altos, as his class was transferred there in 1924, when the new institution opened, graduating in the pioneer rhetoric class the following spring. He returned to St. Patrick's as a seminarian and has finished a two-year philosophy course there.

On his way east Louis Webber will visit Denver, Chicago, Washington and New York. Besides the Federal building in Washington, he will visit the Catholic University there. He sails on the new palatial liner, Ile de France, October 1st. He carries letters of introduction to prominent people across the states in Paris and Locarno, Switzerland. He will also visit the Sulpician Order in Paris. He will visit relatives in the old city of Strassburg, and hopes to see Rome before his return.

Cramp Fatal To Swimmer

YOUTH DROWNS WHILE SWIMMING IN LAKE

Scene of Tragedy West of this City Sunday

While swimming in Emerald Lake No. 2 with three companions, Fred Walter, 21, of San Francisco, was seized with cramps which resulted in in his being drowned Sunday. Two companions of the boy, Joseph Swartz and G. L. Beck were near him and endeavored to keep him on the surface, but he struggled so much that all three were in danger of drowning, and finally sank out of their reach.

Word of the drowning was telephoned to town and a party, consisting of Edward McAuliffe of the police department, Robert Bell of the fire department, Sheriff McGrath and Deputy Sheriffs Jules Jara, and Deputy Coroner John Layng hurried to the lake.

The party worked for hours searching the bottom of the lake for the body. Later the party was joined by Ernest Werder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Werder, who dove into the lake and brought the body to the surface.

An inquest was held Monday morning at the parlors of Layng & Tinney. Funeral services were held Tuesday in San Francisco at St. Anthony's church. Walter was a student of St. Anthony's school and the whole student body of the school was present at the funeral and tok part in the chanting. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery.

Walter is survived by his father and nine brothers and sisters.

Brush Fire Threatens Kings Mountain Cabins

When a fire of unknown origin was discovered in the brush-covered slopes of Kings mountain last Monday, it appeared for a time as though several week-end cabins in that district would be destroyed. Fire Warden Bert Werder, with a crew of volunteer fire fighters, however, after a battle of three hours, succeeded in getting the flames under control without the loss of one of the cabins.

Asks Administration Of Mother's Estate

George Stanley Rice has petitioned the Superior court for letters of administration upon the estate of his mother, the late Mary Louise Rice, who died in Redwood City on August 31. The value of the estate is not stated in the petition except that it is worth over $10,000. The heirs at law are Mary Louise Rice, a daughter and George Stanley Rice, a son who asks to be appointed administrator. Ross & Ross are the attorneys for the petitioner.

Stolen Car Found On Woodside Road

An automobile found to belong to Curtis C. Clore, 1233 Arguello street, San Francisco, was found Wednesday morning on the Woodside road not far from here. The find was reported to Sheriff McGrath, who investigated the car. The owner was located. The car had been stolen the previous night in San Francisco, and had been stripped of everything movable before being abandoned by the thieves.

Name of Menlo Avenue Changed to Oaks Drive

A petition was received by the board of supervisors Monday from a number of residents of Menlo Park asking the change of the name of Menlo avenue to Oaks Drive. The change was asked for the reason that there were two Menlo avenues in the district, which resulted in confusion. The request was granted, upon a motion of Supervisor Thompson.

VETERAN MASONS HONORED AT BIG MEETING HERE

Event Largely Attended from All Over County

Free Masons from all sections of the peninsula gathered at the Redwood City Masonic Temple last evening at one of the largest Masonic gatherings ever held in this district, with the possible exception of the dedication of the temple. The occasion was the district meeting of the lodges of the 51st Masonic district and a tribute to two of the oldest Masons in the state, both members of peninsula lodges.

The two veterans honored at the meeting last evening were P. P. Chamberlain, who has been a member of the lodge here for more than 58 years and Fernand Levy, for 54 years a member of San Mateo lodge.

Both of these men have records unique in Masonic service. Chamberlain was admitted to membership in the local lodge, at that time called San Mateo Lodge No. 168, but now Redwood City Lodge No. 168, in 1869.

P. P. Chamberlain, for forty years treasurer of this county, was for ten years master of the lodge. The years he served in this capacity were 1874, '86, '87, '88, '89, '90, '96, '97, 1900 and '01. For thirty years he has held an office in the lodge, and is now chaplain. He still maintains the greatest interest in the order and last January took the Scottish Rite degrees.

Fernand Levy is a member of San Mateo Lodge No. 226, having joined that lodge in Halfmoon Bay in 1873 when it was called Haywards Lodge and met in Halfmoon Bay. It was later located in San Mateo and the name was later changed to San Mateo Lodge. Levy was installed as treasurer of the lodge in December of 1873 and has held the position ever since.

The meeting last evening consisted of a Third Degree conferred by officers of all peninsula lodges. The lodges represented were: Redwood City, No. 168; San Mateo, No. 226; Palo Alto, No. 346; Francis Drake, No. 376; Burlingame, No. 400; and Menlo Park, U D.

Charles H. Merrill, past master of Redwood City Lodge, acted as master of ceremonies, and the degree was exemplified by the following officers:

Charles G. Lambert, P. M., worshipful master, Redwood City, No. 168; Samuel L. Hawkins, P. M., senior warden, Burlingame, No. 400; Harry Potts, P. M., junior warden, Redwood City, No. 168; A. N. Umphreys, P. M., secretary, Palo Alto, No. 246; N. C. Cummings, P. M., treasurer, Redwood City, No. 168; J. R. Eubanks, P. M., marshal, San Mateo, No. 226; W. A. Crowell, P. M., chaplain, Redwood City, No. 168; N. W. Glaeser, P. M., senior steward, Palo Alto, No. 346; L. G. Hardy, P. M., junior deacon, Francis Drake, No. 376; C. W. King, P. M., senior steward; Francis Drake, No. 376; W. Wilkins, P. M., junior stweard, Burlingame, No. 400.

Others taking part in the conferring of the degrees were:

O. J. L. Byers, P. M., San Mateo, No. 226; L. A. Cavalier, P. M.; N. W. Glaeser, P. M., A. S. Lamond, P. M., W. H. Eddy, P. M., Burlingame, No. 400; P. E. Brand, Redwood City, No. 168; and Harry L. Todd, P. M., Parnassus, No. 288.

Following the degree, an elaborate banquet was enjoyed in the banquet room, where John L. McNab was the principal speaker.

CHAS. F. HANLON SUCCUMBS IN S. F.

Attorney Well Known In San Mateo County

Charles F. Hanlon, the widely known San Francisco attorney who died in San Francisco last Saturday, was well-known in this county having had many cases in tre superior court here. He was a schoolmate of the late Judge Fitzpatrick and the late Joseph Burns at Saint Mary's College in the seventies. Hanlon enjoyed a large and lucrative law practice. Of late years he had been an attorney for one of the Brittain heirs and appeared in court here only a short time ago. He was meticulous in dress, erudite in the law and urbane in manner.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Exceeding even the most optimistic predictions of State officials, attendance at the Seventy-third annual California State Fair totaled 282,892, it was announced last week by Charles W. Paine, secretary of the State board of agriculture. This establishes a new record for the State Fair, the attendance total being over 50,000 beyond the highest figure at any previous exposition.

Eight hundred canning peach growers of Yuba, Sutter and Butte counties met last week and unanimously adopted a report of their own special committee which recommended the formation of a canning peach growers' pool. The growers further decided that the pool shall eventually be enlarged to include other counties in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys.

Ten years of effort to find another route for the Southern Pacific's main line through San Jose once more hit a detour last week, when the residents of Willow Glen, a suburb on the southwestern fringe of San Jose, voted to form a separate city in order to deny the railroad a franchise. The vote was 685 to 363 in favor of incorporation as a city of the sixth class. All candidates for office of trustee were pledged to denial of the franchise.

Harold Lorentzen, formerly in charge of a big Arizona cattle ranch, last week took rank at Los Angeles as the first man to be awarded alimony under the new State law. His wife, Daisy M. Lorentzen, is under court order to pay him $50 a month and $150 to his attorney, pending the outcome of their contested divorce suit. Lorentzen said he had been out of work since last January and declared his wife "always had been the banker of the family."

A new contract under which the State eventually will acquire the Strub office building at Sacramento at a large saving as compared with past agreements went into force last week when the State Department of Finance made a payment of $200,000 to Charles Strub, San Francisco baseball magnate and owner of the building. Director of Finance Alexander R. Heran announced that the State under the new arrangement is to pay a yearly rental of $200,000 for three years, at the end of which time the Strub building will become State property without additional cost.

More than $5,000,000 was saved the people of California through the activities of the transportation section of the Railroad Commission during 1926-27, according to a report issued last week. This amount represents sums saved through regulation of rates and is in actual reductions, prevention of overcharges or proposed increases and refunds, it is declared. Five airplane carriers engaged in interstate business appear among the 1,386 transportation and storage utilities regulated by the commission. A large portion of the savings to the citizens through action by the commission is in lowered tariffs on farm products.

The steady growth of normal western travel to California was indicated in a statement issued last week by F. S. McGinnis, passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific. The figures were based upon the number of validations of tickets of Pacific Coast travelers from the East. These show an increase since May 15 of 10.54 per cent as compared with the corresponding period of last year. "The increase," said McGinnis, "is more impressive when it is recalled that this year there have been no important national conventions in California."

California is like a merchant with a wealth of merchandise on his shelves and not enough customers, State Real Estate Commissioner Stephen Barnson told local realtors at the monthly luncheon meeting of the San Francisco Real Estate Board, last week. "There is one thing that will bring these customers to our door and that is advertising," said Barnson. "I am going to advocate the spending of all surplus funds in my department to this end. California should have a well organized advertising and publicity program functioning throughout the year that would bring the new settlers and the new industries that this state can accommodate."

Declaring that thousands of California motorists are using illegal auto lights without knowing it, Frank G. Snook, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles, announced plans for a statewide poster campaign in an effort to educate the public to the need for adjusting glaring or otherwise defective headlights. It is proposed to display the headlight posters permanently in filling stations through arrangements with the large gasoline distributing agencies.

Gross earnings of California prisoners have totaled $1,074,788 in the four years of State prison highway camp operations just completed, according to figures made public by the department of public works. After deduction of camp operation expenses, the convicts made net earnings of $144,782, which were either alloted to their dependents or credited to them against the time of their release. The allotments were announced as $33,395. The road camps were established under 1915 legislation but the wage system for convict workers was not inaugurated until 1923.

Dan Cupid's efficiency as a matchmaker was reduced approximately 20 per cent in California during the first month under the new State law requiring a three-day notice before a marriage license can be obtained. Figures revealed today by L. E. Ross, director of the State bureau of vital statistics, showed that during August this year there was a decrease in number of marriages in 42 of the State's 58 counties, as compared with August of 1926. The new statute became effective on July 29. Weddings in the State for August, 1926, totaled 5,011.

An apportionment of State money to the public schools of California for the first half of the year, totaling $15,902,110 officially was announced last week by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Cooper. Of the total $14,514,500 goes to the elementary schools, $1,078,810 to the high schools and $308,800 to the junior colleges.

That an immediate survey of State highway bridges in California is to be made in order to work out a plan for widening them and to determine what ones shall be handled first, is the announcement made at Sacramento to by B. B. Meek, State director of public works.

The possibility that the California State Fair next year may continue for more than eight days, as has been the custom in the past, was seen last week when the directors set Saturday, September 1st, as the opening date for the 1928 exhibition, but postponed until a later date the setting of the closing day of the fair. The suggestion has come to the state agricultural society from various sources that the state fair should be extended to ten days, two weeks or even a month.

Plans for immediate construction of permanent encampment quarters for the California National Guard on the new camp site near San Luis Obispo were announced last week at Sacramento by R. E. Mittelstaedt.

Snow fell on the mountains at and near the Summit of the Sierra Nevada range last week, according to reports brought to Auburn, Placer County by motorists on their return home. The snow fell in flurries and there was no sustained storm.

With six weeks of the 1927 fire season remaining State Forester M. B. Pratt announced that damage on State protected lands has totaled only $438,415 thus far and predicted that California may achieve a new low record in losses this year. A comparatively small loss in the timber districts was stressed in Pratt's report to Fred G. Stevenot, State director of natural resources. Losses to date were classified as follows: Range fires $212,669; grain fires, $51,685; timber fires, $15,568; loss of improvements, $158,493. The burned areas include 2,863 acres of grain, 283,783 acres of grass, 109,653 acres of brush and 16,276 acres of timber.

Bacchus will smile on a bountiful harvest of the vineyards of Marin county on October 1, when the annual Grape Festival is held under the auspices of prominent society folk of the bay region. The celebration will be held, as usual, on the beautiful grounds of Congressman and Mrs. William Kent at Kentfield, who each year throw open their wooded acres on this occasion to the public. The proceeds will be devoted to the San Francisco Orphanage and Farm at San Anselmo.

Giving $330,000 to the San Francisco Bay Shore highway, the State Department of Public Works last week announced definite apportionment of $1,039,000 out of the $2,225,000 expected December 1 as the first money available under the Breed 1-cent gasoline tax increase law for new highway construction. This is the first announcement of highway budgeting under the new statute, which is calculated to provide $120,000,000 for new road building in California during the next decade.

A state-wide census of all California minors under the age of 18 years will be undertaken during the first week in October in accordance with a statute passed by the last legislature, it was announced last week by William John Cooper, state superintendent of public instruction. The survey is intended to provide information which will make for better administration of the state compulsory and part time education laws.

Camp Kearny, where 80,000 doughboys from Pacific coast States were trained in modern warfare in 1918 has passed from governmental control back to the original owner of the site, according to announcement made at San Diego last week by the Mack Copper Company. The federal court of claims at Washington has rendered a judgment in favor of the Mack Copper Company for $280,000 and returned the property to them.

There are now 432 water utilities operating in the state of California under the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission, according to the annual report of the Hydraulic Division of the Engineering Department of the commission just compiled. These water utilities vary in size from small plants serving not more than two dozen consumers to the largest, which serves more than 120,000 consumers. The individual investment in the physical properties of these utilities varies from a few thousand dollars for the small plant to approximately $70,000,000 for the largest water utility. The total investment in public utility water works in California today is estimated by the Hydraulic Division to be approximately $200,000,000.

A gain of more than 8,000 members, with a total membership of more than 130,000, will be reported to the California Grand Lodge Free and Accepted Masons, when its seventy-eighth annual convention convenes in San Francisco, Tuesday, October 11, for a five-day gathering. Grand Secretary John Whicher, will also report an increase of twelve new lodges during the year. There will be more than 1,500 delegates in attendance, representing 563 subordinate lodges and a total membership of 130,000, representing the largest fraternal organization in California.

With the completion of the government survey of the Stockton deep water to the sea project, for which congress has authorized an appropriation of $2,400,000, plans for a monster regatta celebration to be held Oct. 1st and 2nd, are being made. The State of California has approved of an appropriation of $419,000 for the purchase of rights of way for the twenty-six-foot channel to the sea and the City of Stockton has voted bonds in the sum of $3,000,000 to make this city an ocean port. Actual digging of the deeper water channel will be under way soon.

Man Might Profit by Imitating Humble Hen

Hard times mean nothing to a hen. She keeps on digging worms and laying eggs, regardless of what the newspapers say about conditions. If the ground is hard, she scratches harder. If it is dry, she digs deeper. If she strikes a rock, she works around it.

But always she digs up worms and turns them into hard-shelled profits as well as tender broilers.

Did you ever see a pessimistic hen?

Did you ever know of one starving to death waiting for worms to dig themselves to the surface?

Did you ever hear one cackle because times were hard?

Not on your life. She saves her breath for digging and her cackle for eggs.—Kroelite News.

Hungry Bruin Is Given His Honey Free Here

There is a famous black bear of the Rocky mountains that comes down out of his winter hibernating den on a "honey spree" every spring when he hears the caretakers getting ready to open the hotels.

Two years ago he went rampant on his annual "periodical," broke into the Glacier hotel and smashed dishes right and left in an eager kitchen rummage for sweets.

Last spring the caretaker left a gallon of sirup on the door sill and that sated Bruin. He went back up the mountain side, peacefully licking his chops, and was satisfied to eat roots and herbs for dessert.

The offering will become a part of the caretaker's annual expense since it is cheaper to end the "sweet tooth" craving at the doorstep than have this audacious "neighborhood" looter run amuck within the building.

Failure to do good is failure indeed.

Courtesy in Japan Not Matter of Sex

Crisp controversy is raging in the Japanese press between women of the island empire and those of foreign lands resident in Nippon over a question of courtesy. The men of Japan do not surrender their seats in public conveyances to women and some alien women have complained that such procedure is barbarous. The women of Japan, rallying to the defense of their husbands and brothers, reply that Japanese courtesy is rational.

It is not, they argue, the female sex, as such, that is entitled to consideration, but rather age. A man will not give up his seat to a woman who is well and strong, but hastens to give it to an elderly or infirm person of either sex or to a very little child. So, too, the women of Japan will give their seats to old or manifestly feeble persons.

We triumph without glory when we conquer without danger.—Corneille.

EASY LESSONS IN AUCTION BRIDGE

By PAUL H. SEYMOUR
Author of "Highlights on Auction Bridge"

(Copyright, by Hoyle, Jr.)

Article Two.

How the Game Is Played

THE game of Auction Bridge is played by four persons using a deck of 52 playing cards. There are 13 cards of each of four suits, spades, hearts, diamonds and clubs. The Ace is the highest, the King next, then Queen, Jack, 10, 9, etc., the 2 or deuce being the lowest. The persons sitting opposite each other at the table are partners, so that the game is a contest between two sides, two persons on a side.

Partners are commonly chosen by drawing or cutting, as it is called. Each person picks up a card from the pack which has been spread face down, and the two drawing the highest cards play together as partners, while the two drawing lowest cards play against them. If cards of equal value of different suits are drawn, the one of the higher suit (as given later) is considered the higher.

The one drawing the highest card is the dealer. The cards are shuffled and then the person at the right of the dealer cuts them. The dealer then deals out all of the cards one at a time, beginning with the person at his left.

After dealing, the bidding or auction for the privilege of naming the trump begins. The dealer has the first bid and then each in turn towards the left. The game is played with any suit as trump or without any trump, called no trump.

As each player holds 13 cards there are 13 tricks. The first six taken by the side winning the bid constitute a book, and each trick after the book counts a certain amount towards game, which requires 30 trick points. Each such trick after the book counts 10 in no trumps; 9 if spades are trump; 8 for hearts; 7 for diamonds, and 6 for clubs. Spades and hearts are called major suits, while diamonds and clubs are the minor.

The manner of the auction is to declare how many tricks beyond the book, called "odd" tricks, the bidder will contract to take. Thus the first one to bid may say one heart, which means that his side must take seven tricks (one odd) with hearts as trump. The second bid must be greater than the one already made; thus if one heart has been bid the next one must say one spade or one no trump or two of either diamonds or clubs. If any player does not have a hand which he considers worth a bid he may pass, and the person at his left then bids or passes.

The auction continues until three players have passed after any bid and then the last bid stands and the last bidder or his partner plays the hand as declarer at his chosen trump. If both partners bid in the same suit, the one naming that suit first plays the hand. If all four players pass without any bid having been made, the hand is thrown down and the next person deals.

After the auction is finished and the trump and declarer determined, the play begins. The player at the left of the declarer leads one card for the first trick. Immediately after this lead the partner of the declarer spreads his cards on the table face up, with the cards sorted into suits and the trump suit preferably at the right. The declarer plays both hands while his partner (called dummy) takes no part in the play. Each player now plays to the first trick in turn towards the left.

Each one must play a card of the suit led if he holds one, but in case he holds none of that suit he may play any card from his hand. The one playing the highest card on a trick wins it, unless it is a suit declaration, and one player having none of the suit led has trumped the trick, in which case the one who has trumped wins. The one winning the trick gathers the four cards and places them face down in front of him and leads to the next trick. This is continued until the 13 tricks have been gathered and turned. Then the counting is done.

Countess of Avignon Described as Paragon

Adelais, if her biographers are to be believed, was that paragon that so many imaginative men demand, the perfection both of physical and mental charm. The other half of the Twelfth and the Thirteenth centuries marked the golden age of the Provencal poets of France, and at the famous courts of love, where poets were princes and poesy was queen, Adelais was the chief ornament of her day.

In this countess of Avignon were united, according to other writers of that time, all those qualities of intellectual charm and radiant physical beauty the troubadours most delighted to sing. So, in the delicate questions of love and gallantry, in the amorous disputes between knights and dames that came before the courts over which she presided, the discretion and wisdom of Adelais were never appealed to in vain.

She probably was the one critic whose judgments never were criticized, even though as the arbiter of good taste and poetic fame she banished all license from her court. The reproduction of Adelais' muse, copied and presented to friends and foreign princes, were cherished as the highest earthly gift.—Kansas City Star.

Which Shall We Choose?

IN an article headed "Our Basic Industries Must Have Labor," a nationally known publication attacks the proposed immigration restricting measures giving as its reason for so doing that alien labor is essential to farmers, sugar beet growers and railroads. In order to give these industries an unlimited supply of cheap, and in many respects undesirable labor, this publication would make it appear that we should admit freely among us hoards of immigrants to whom our form of government is new, who care nothing for our laws and who know nothing of the standards of living which life in America a little better and more worth living.

Already we are feeling the influence of the unassimilated alien. We have settlements within our own country where English is an unknown tongue. Every city has its foreign section, and foreign ideas are too often expressed when irresponsible mobs gather together.

In this regard we believe Senator Trammell of Florida expresses the opinion of the average American when he says:

"The recent demonstration incident to the Sacco-Vanzetti case emphasizes the necessity for this country barring from its shores all alien anarchists and others who are enemies to the American government, and for the deportation of such of those as may now be in the United States.

"A man who is traitor to his flag in time of war is shot at sunrise. Then certainly deportation is not any too severe for those who would in time of peace conspire to destroy or attempt to overthrow the government that is succoring them.

"If the laws are not ample for the deportation of these alien anarchists and reds who are menacing our American ideals and our unequalled system of government, then I am for so strengthening the law as that they can be driven back to the land from whence they came.

"Many foreigners who have come to this country have made and are making good citizens but on account of the commendable conduct of these we Americans should not feel that we are due to give any quarter to the undesirable alien. I am for the strictest immigration laws and for keeping the quota of immigrants at the minimum."

Our country is too great, and our responsibility to our posterity too great to allow the grasping of any indusry for cheap labor to overthrow the great and free democracy which our ancestors have built in this land for us.

OUR COUNTRY GIVES CREDIT WHERE DUE

THE recent conferring of degrees by a Middle Western university upon a number of farmers whose work had been of aid in the progress of agriculture, is a salient example of American democracy. It but shows again that this is the one great country in the world where a man is rewarded and judged entirely upon his work, and not by social and economic standards beyond his control. These men being given this honor was but little commented upon for the reason that it is nothing unusual; the people realize it is natural that anyone who distinguishes himself in any way will get credit for it. In Europe, on the contrary, should anything like this happen, it would be so unprecedented as to be a sensation. That is one of the reasons for the immense difference in progressiveness between the two continents.

There can be no danger of radicalism or any other "ism" where democracy prevails. It is impossible to make a malcotent of a person who knows there is nothing that will oppose him should he have sufficient ability to become a great business man, statesman or anything else. Perfectly contented people won't trouble themselves to follow highly dubious theories of "what might be done."

PLANS TO AID FLYING DISCUSSED

By Esto Broughton

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 19 — Every community in California is interested today in carrying on the "Spirit of St. Louis."

And the League of Municipalities in session in the Capital city this week has under consideration several plans to aid aviation along the lines of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's suggestions by establishing municipal airports in every city in the state.

"Airports are as essential to airplanes as good highways are to automobiles," the young lone eagle, who flew from New York to Paris all by himself, declared to Sacramento audiences before he hopped off on the next lap of his air tour.

"Every city should have a landing field, it is one of the essential safety features necessary before commercial aviation becomes popular," Lindbergh stated.

Looking forward to great strides in aviation "Lindy" prophecied that his cherished "Spirit of St. Louis," which made the memorable flight to Paris, would become obsolete before it was worn out.

Comparing the utility of air travel with that of motor vehicles, the first trans-Atlantic flier said that the fuel cost of his famous plane on the New York to Paris flight was only $100 or averaged about 4 cents per mile.

The cost of planes will be reduced as the output increases in Lindbergh's opinion. The planes average an air mileage of 200,000 miles before they are worn out a record made by few motor vehicles, and it is necessary to overhaul the engines rarely.

"The Spirit of St. Louis" had 260 air hours to its credit and 20,000 miles, when it took off from Sacramenti and had never been overhauled, he stated.

Safety and economy rather than speed will be the criterion of aviation development from now on, the youthful aviator predicted. And commercial flying can be much cheaper and safer than military types of aviation, he contended.

Among the admiring throngs who greeted Lindy alighting were Lucy and Barbara Young, the Governor's daughters, who were photographed with the bashful partner of "We" on Mather Field.

At the banquet in Lindy's honor Governor C. C. Young confessed that Lindy was a family as well as a national and interntional hero and his flapper daughters had almost memorized the pilot's book, "We."

Making the air safe for aviators is a task which is taxing not only the ingenuity of mechanical geniuses but also the civic responsibility of federal, state and city officials.

"Stop, look and listen," signs for aerial traffic will probably be displayed in the near future from the highest roof in each city, according to the safety plan being outlined by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover to Governor C. C. Young.

The cabinet member from California has solicited the aid of the cecutive of this state in securing the co-operation of every community in arranging these aerial guides.

"He who flies may read," when the Hoover aviation safety plan is completed for the names of each city will be blazoned forth so that they will be visible from the sky and encircling birdmen will know whether he is hovering over Merced or Modesto, Sunnyvale or Milpitas.

The Hoover request will be presented to the cities of California at the annual convention of the League of Municipalities this week by Governor Young.

'Y' COMMITTEE SETS CAMPAIGN DATES

At a meeting of the San Mateo County Y. M. C. A. Committee of management last week the dates of October 10th to 21st were decided upon for the annual Y. M. C. A. financial campaign. The campaign is to be a simultaneous effort upon the part of all of the communities in San Mateo county which are participating in the Y. M. C. A. program.

For organization purposes the county is divided into three districts with a local chairman for each district. D. W. Williams is chairman for the Redwood City district, Frederick Smith and committee will name a chairman for San Mateo this week. J. D. Bromfield is chairman for the Burlingame district. George Chessum, formerly executive secretary for the county and now Metropolitan Executive Boys' Work Secretary for San Francisco will be campaign director. The general chairman for the campaign will be announced this week.

30 YEARS AGO

Times-Gazette, Sept. 25, 1897

Thursday evening last week, Mrs. Henry Kreiss entertained a number of her friends at her home in West Union, the occasion being the anniversary of her birth. Mrs. Krei was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents. Among those present were noticed Mr. and Mrs Henry Kreiss, Mr. and Mrs Thomas Knights, Mr. and Mrs Columbus Bryant, Mr. and Mrs Charles Knights, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McNulty, Mr. and Mrs Frank McEvoy of Menlo Park Mr. and Mrs. Moore of Canyada Miss Ella McNulty, William Mc Cormick of Oakland, Joe McCormick of Pescadero, Alber McCucker of San Francisco, J Sullivan of Canyada and Pete McCormick. Thomas Knights tripped the light fantastic toe for the first time in twenty years.

Mrs. Barriohlet, who for th past month has been with her neice at Bartlett Springs, has returned and is stopping at the Capitol.

Laban Langley has improved his property on First street by adding a neat picket fence and white-washing it.

E. S. Clute and his handsome bride have returned from their honeymoon and are receiving the congratulations of their friends.

The Eureka Daily Standard has this to say of a party of young Redwood men. "Among the passengers who arrived on the Pomona this morning were a number of San Mateons who intend enjoying themselven for two weeks at the expense of the finny denizens of our famous creeks. The party hails from Redwood City and is composed of J. B. Hollinshead, F. M. Granger, C. S. Dalve, R. Pigion, J. A. Genochio and C. D. Hayward. Messers. Granger and Hayward are officials of San Mateo county, being tax collecter and assessor, respectively. Mr. Hollinshead is also a notable personage, being a returned Klondiker. He was one of the first to arrive in San Francisco with the news of the richness of that now celebrated mining country, having come out last July."

San Francisco—Steamer "California," largest built under American flag, will soon enter New York-California run.

RURAL LIFE IS DISCUSSED

By Clem Whitaker

Special to the Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 21 — Rural California is blazing the trail toward a better community life.

In public improvements, civic buildings, streets, parks and playgrounds, California's country towns are setting municipal fashions for the world.

This recognition of the contribution being made to world progress by the "big little cities" was emphasized here this week at the annual convention of the California League of Municipalities, which opened Tuesday for a four-day discussion of municipal problems.

To quote State Controller Ray Riley on the subject: "California possesses a mertopolitan smartness in every municipality throughout the state. In addition thereto, the state's highway program is far in advance of any other commonwealth when a comparison is made between expenditures and mileage with territory and assets."

The value of real estate in 264 California communities was placed at $3,208,684,915 by the controller. Improvements in the same cities were valued at $1,412,369,-773 by the state officer. As further indication of the wealth of the state, Riley reported personal property in the cities has a value of $710,782,589. Non-operative property boosted the civic wealth total $4,331,836,877 and operative property was valued at $782,-[illegible],895.

Aviation and the development of commercial flying by city cooperation figured as an important topic of discussion in the convention sessions. It was pointed out that many of the smaller cities have led the way in providing municipal airports. Modesto was cited as the first city in the state to recognize aviation by providing in its city charter for a flying field, this having been done when airplanes were considered as impractical by many.

Plans were discussed for securing a uniform system of signs to guide aviators, as suggested by Secretary of Commerce Hoover recently in a letter to Governor Young. Under the proposed proposal, the name of each community would be blazoned forth in huge letters from the top of the city's tallest building. This is designed so that "He who flies may read," and know his exact location.

City planning, to make for unity and uniformity in California's various communities, is another important subject at the convention. Millions of dollars can be saved, it was emphasized, by planning community development with an eye to the future. A planning cimmission soon to be named by Governor Young will further this work.

Redwood City's representatives at this session of the league were City Clerk W. A. Price, City Attorney Albert Mansfield, and City Treasurer B. E. Myers.

Approximately 1200 delegates attended the big meeting, with representatives from virtually every municipality in the state participating. The California Association of Dairy and Milk Inspectors held its conventiin at the same time, the inspectors "sitting in" with municipality league officials to insure co-operation in carrying out the programs.

WILL FILED FOR PROBATE HERE

Martha C. Lam has filed the last will and testament of her late husband, E. R. Lam, who died at Menlo Park on August 28th last. The will was executed on October 4, 1903. The estate consists of notes, bonds, mortgages and real property located at East Palo Alto valued at over $10,000 and the heirs at-law are the surviving widow, and three sons, Lawrence Earl, and Lloyd Lam, Attorney Austin Swart is the attorney for the petitioner. The deceased was formerly a merchant in Nevada.

STATUETTE OF JAPANESE POTTERY

A little old Japanese man
With his broom there swung in his hand,
Smiling so constantly,
Dreaming of family?

Indeed you there on my piano,
Never dreamed of in far away Tokyo,
With your smiling face, kind demeanor and grace,
Making me back to my native place.

Land of sunshine with clatter of getta,*
Land of isles, chrysanthemums, 'rickshas,
Land of laughter and make-believe living,
Where goldfish sparkle and cicada sing.

Little old man with broom in hand,
To sweep the garden of oriental plan
Where curved bridges midst stone lanterns lay
And tinkling glass 'neath cherry blossoms sway.

There Fuji, majestic, keeps watch over all,
No wonder you reverence her silent call.

WOODSIDE

James Wilkie, who for several years has been the superintendent of the Whittell place here has left Woodside to become superintendent of the Fitzhue place at Portola.

Mrs. William Lawson of Carmel has been visiting her mother Mrs. Bradford Leavitt this week.

The Woodside Fire department under the direction of Fire Chief Dirks, held its monthly drill at the Bishop place on Sunday last.

The Parent-Teacher Association held its first card party of the season on Friday evening and its first sewing circle on Tuesday afternoon with a goodly attendance at each.

The boys of the Woodside School are getting experience as carpeners while erecting a new hand-ball court for the use of the school.

John Volpiano, after having been for seven years foreman of the McCann place, has moved into his own home on the Canyada road.

Mrs. Bradford Leavitt and family will leave on Thursday nert for their home in Pasadena.

With the end of the prune picking season in sight, it is apparent that the crop in this vicinity will be above the average both in size of the prunes and in total tonnage. The growers are hoping to get through the season without interference from rain.

Y. M. C. A. PLANS 'Y' BOYS NIGHT

At the request of a number of prominent citizens the Y. M. C. A. is putting on a "Y Boys' Night" at the First Congregational church next Friday evening, September 30th.

This will give the public an opportunity to see the various types of club work being promoted by the "Y." The "Friendly Indian," "Pioneer" "Comrade," "Hi-Y," "Young Men's Club," "College Y Clubs," "Hobby Club," "Recreational and Athletic Club", "Y Leaders' Club," and " Y Committee Service Club" programs will be presented.

Admission will be by ticket. Tickets can be secured free through any Y. M. C. A. Boy Club member.

This program is being promoted through the Redwood City District Y. M. C. A. Committee, which is composed of Messrs. D. W. Williams, Carl Wagner, Earl Rush, Wilbur Doxsee, W. B. Langston, John Gill, Louis Behrens, Walter Kellogg, John Isaac, Stanley Netherton, C. M. Doxsee, Otis M. Carrington, John Fudge, Don Bogie, C. E. Haydock, Joe Gibson, Charles Merrill, J. D. Gish and J. H. Stubbe.

High School Notes

The annual freshman-sophomore rush, which is to be held on the baseball field has been postponed from yesterday to next Wednesday. The first event will be the tug-o-war. The kalsomine fight and flag rush will follow.

At a meeting of the Scholarship Society recently officers were elected for the coming year and plans were discussed. Eugene Bone heads the organization with Fred Kalenborn, vice-president, Jane Ingram, secretary, and Gladys Anderson, treasurer.

The senior dance will take place October 22, and will be a Hallowe'en affair.

"Resolved: that the practice of installment buying is detrimental to the United States," is the topic of the debate to be held soon between the day school debaters and the night school.

At the commissioners' meeting Tuesday it was decided to have as a third award in track, a gold spike track shoe. The first award is a block "S" sweater, and the second a winged foot.

At the assembly yesterday afternoon, John Gill, Sequoia's former vice-principal, and now superintendent of Redwood City school, spoke about his recent trip to Europe.

Delta Theta Chi, mathematics club, with Paul H. Gerrish as advisor, plans to present two medals at graduation. One will go to the student with the highest average in his high school career, the other will be awarded to the highest standing member of the club.

Tomorrow night the juniors will have a class party in the library. For those who do not dance, games will be in order.

The members of the Social Problems classes are going to take a trip to Agnews Sanitarium tomorrow afternoon.

Sequoia's 110 lb. basketball team will have a chance to redeem itself for its defeat at the hands of Mission High in San Francisco, in their game with Galileo High of San Francisco this evening, Sept. 23. The 120's, after showing class against Mission, can be expected to maintain their reputation against the Galileo aggregation.

The games will be staged in Sequoia's gymnasium, this Friday evening, September 23, at 7:30.

Last week found Sequoia on top with two victories and one defeat. A victory in football, one in basketball, a defeat in basketball. Sequoia's football team won from the Monterey aggregation by a score of 7 to 6.

The basketball teams split the evening with Commerce High, winning the 110's and losing the 120's. The 10's won by a large score 29 to 19, while the 20's lost by a large score of 12 to 21.

SEQUOIA VS WATSONVILLE ON LOCAL FIELD TOMORROW

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 on the Sequoia turf, Coach Ramon Dimmick's team will get into action against Watsonville. The team work is becoming smoother now and it will work more like a machine.

With the addition of Captain "Ike" Harper, who has just returned to Sequoia, C. Hansen from Montana, and Ed Schwikert, Sequoia's chances of capturing the P. A. L. championship look brighter than ever.

By his return to his old position of tackle, Captain Harper has considerably strengthened the line. Hansen, a transfer from Montana, is a dangerous offensive in hitting the line. During the spring practice, Ed Schwiekert was trained for the full-back position.

The starting line-up will be picked from these men:

Ends—Danz, Mitchell, Hamilton.
Tackles—Harper, Lintner, Clancy.
Guards—Kanno, Sutton, Britschgi.
Center—Archibald, Chilcott.
Quarter—Jansing.
Half—Coehlo, Honeyman, Jones, Hansen.
Full—Lintner, Schwiekert.

SEQUOIA WINS AND LOSES BASKETBALL

Sequoia's basketball teams came home with a split victory from their trip to San Francisco, to play Mission High School. The 110's lost their game by a score of 20-9, while the 120's won by a close score of 28-26.

The 120's have shown much improvement since their game against Commerce High. They have not only proved their ability in team work, but have also shown improvement in "pep." The score changed hands four times before Captain Carl Britschgi finally decided it was about time to tuck the game away. Coach Griffin is very much pleased with the improvement in the teams during this one week of practice.

The 110's did not show the class of game which they did against Commerce high last week.

Consistent team work was the out-standing feature of both 110's and 120's game. Both teams for Mission were pretty well developed, both used plenty of speed and good pass work throughout the game. Bud Longly of the 110's, and Captain Lambert of the 120's were the outstanding players for Mission High.

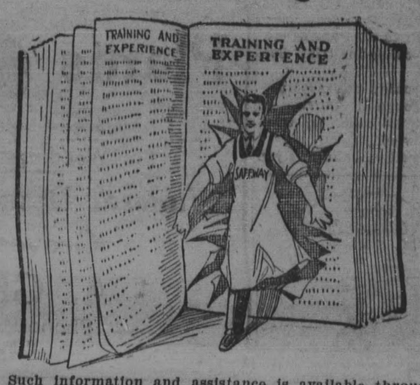
About Quick Service



It takes training and specialized knowledge to rapidly and correctly serve hundreds of patrons in a food store each day. Dispensing foods, if skillfully and scientifically done, calls for an unusual degree of ability; of willingness to undergo long periods of intensive training and a deep sense of responsibility to the purchasing public. Merely getting together a pile of food and asking folks to come and get it is not merchandising in the modern sense. People rightfully demand information and assistance in selecting those things which will most economically and satisfactorily meet their requirements. Such information and assistance is available through the Safeway Man in a larger measure than can be found anyhwere else.

FALL FROM TREE PROVES FATAL TO LOCAL LINEMAN

A fall of 30 feet from a shade tree in Burlingame last Friday proved fatal to James L. Helm, lineman of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. Helm, who made his home in this city, was engaged in trimming trees along the line of the electric line. He fell when a dead limb broke under him, and struck on the sidewalk below fracturing his skull. He was removed to the Mills Memorial hospital and died within two hours

No Mystery Shrouds Wrecked Car Now

Clouds of mystery which last week surrounded the finding by a hunting party of a blood stained car at the bottom of a ravine near the Alpine road in a badly wrecked condition were cleared away last Friday when word was received from the owner of the car. On the car was a note stating that the owner had gone for help and asking that the car be not molested. The note was signed by J. S. Hester of Stockton.

Speculation then arose as to whether Hester had been so badly injured that he had been unable to reach help, and a search was made of the surrounding country. The car had the appearance of having been in the ravine for several weeks.

While investigations of the wreck were being made Captain Logan of the state traffic squad located Hester in Stockton and the matter was soon cleared up. Hester stated that he had run off the grade and wrecked the car. The blood was from his hand which was badly cut and blead freely. He and his wife were in the car, and they secured a ride to San Francisco from a passing motorist. They had intended to return for the car, but came to the conclusion that getting it out of the ravine and repaired would cost more than it was worth, so had left it there.

BETTER BUSINESS INSTITUTE HOLDS SUCCESSFUL SERIES

A series of lectures known as the Better Business Institute has been held this week at the St. Peter's parish house by Mr. and Mrs. Perry Armold. The lectures have been well attended, and according to the Redwood City chamber of commerce, under whose auspices the series was given, are resulting in better business conditions here.

The lecture this evening, "Selling Your City," will be given at the parish house at 7:30. This will be the last of the series and will be open to the public. A large atendance is anticipated.

On Monday the chamber of commerce will hold its noon luncheon meeting at the parish house. At this meeting the Arhouse will sum up the week's work. Another feature of the Monday meeting will be an address by Miss Myra Kimball, superintendent of the San Francisco Health Farm nearing completion in the hills west of town, and her assistant, Miss Margaret Little. They will outline the plans for the institution.

KIWANIS CLUB HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

The meeting of the Redwood City Kiwanis Club Wednesday was a closed meeting, at which no regular speaker is scheduled, and everyone is given the opportunity to be heard. In this instance nearly everyone was heard. Ray Griffin was the chairman of the meeting. Raymon Dimmick and Roscoe Stevens gave short talks.

New life new color for your living room

A modern principle in floor and table lamp construction improves home lighting

Soft, mellow, shadowless light evenly spread throughout the room—ample light for the whole family to read, write, sew or play cards—light that brings out the rich colors of draperies and furniture—light that is kind to your family's eyes.

Such lighting is now possible through a new principle in floor and table lamp construction. This new principle banishes the harmful gloom and glare that is so common with ordinary lamps.

The New Principle

The silk shade rests on an inverted glass reflector which surrounds the bulb so that direct rays from the electric lamp can never strike you in the eyes. It's this reflector that saves your eyes and diffuses the light. The result is a single floor or table lamp that really lights a room.

Our representative would gladly discuss home lighting with you. He'll tell you about the beautiful new floor and table lamps that are designed after this new principle of lighting.

Convenience and assurance

AT vacation's close, thoughts turn to activities of the busy season just ahead—readjustment to home and business life; the household to be put in order; social contacts resumed.

In your plans for this and all seasons, include an extension—a modern convenience that makes it easier for the housewife to do the things she does each day by telephone.

A properly placed extension insures telephone privacy when it is desired, saves countless tiring steps and is known to thousands as added assurance in emergencies. And the cost is only a few cents a week.

Low Fares EAST
You can still go east at low cost. Summer reduced roundtrip fares are good for return until October 31. Plan to go now and profit by them.
A choice of routes and trains matched by no other transcontinental railroad. For example: you can reach Chicago in 63 hours from San Francisco aboard the deluxe San Francisco Overland Limited. Return the same way if you wish; or come back via New Orleans and Los Angeles on Sunset Limited, or Golden State Route via El Paso and Los Angeles. It costs no more via these routes, and only slightly additional via Pacific Northwest and the spectacular Shasta Route.
Note the low roundtrip fares quoted here; similar fares to many other places.

BEFORE THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF SAN MATEO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

PETITION FOR INCORPORATION

To the Honorable, the Board of Supervisors of the County of San Mateo, State of California.

We, the undersigned qualified electors of the County of San Mateo, State of California, and residents within the limits of that portion of said county hereinafter described, which portion contains twenty-five hundred (2500) inhabitants, as nearly as may be, and is not incorporated as a municipal corportion, hereby petition tnat the same may be incorporated as a municipal corporation of the sixth class, under the name and style of the City of Menlo Park, in accordance with and pursuant to the provisions of that certain act of the Legislature of said state, entitled, "An act to provide for the organization, incorporation and government of municipal corporations," approved March 13, 1883, and amendments thereto to date hereof.

The proposed boundaries of the said proposed municipal corporation are next hereinafter set forth and are particularly described as follows, to-wit:

All that portion of said county of San Mateo, state of California, bounded as follows, to-wit:

BEGINNING at a point where the northeasterly boundary line of the right of way of the Southern Pacific Company intersects the centerline of San Francisquito Creek; RUNNING thence northwesterly along the northeasterly line of said Southern Pacific Company right of way to its intersection with the center line of Ravenswood Avenue; thence northeasterly along the center line of Ravenswood Avenue to its intersection with the southeasterly production of the line dividing lots two hundred thirty-five (235) and two hundred thirty-six (236) as shown on Map of Menlo Park Villa Association filed for record September 14, 1863, in Volume "C" of Maps at page 6, Records of San Mateo County; thence northwesterly along said production and along the line dividing said lots two hundred thirty-five (235) and two hundred thirty-six (236) and continuing along the line dividing lots two hundred thirty-four (234) and two hundred thirty-seven (237) as shown on said map to the center line of Oak Grove Avenue; thence northeasterly along the center line of Oak Grove Avenue to the southeasterly production of the line dividing lots two hundred thirty-eight (238) and two hundred forty-five (245) as shown on said map produced southeasterly; thence northwesterly along the said southeasterly production of the line dividing said lots two hunderd thirty-eight (238) and two hundred forty-five (245) and continuing along the line dividing said lots two hundred thirty-eight (238) and two hundred forty-five (245) to the corner common to lots two hundredthirty-eigh (238), two hundred thirty-nine (239) two hundred fortyfour (244) and two hundred forty-five (245), as shown on said map; thence southwesterly along the southeasterly line of lots two hundred thirty-nine (239), two hundred thirty-two (232) two hundred twenty-seven (227), two hundred twenty (220), two hundred fifteen (215) and two hundred eight (208) as shown on said map, and its production southwesterly to the center line of Laurel Avenue; thence northwesterly along the centerline of Laurel Avenue to the center line of Encinal Avenue; thence northeasterly along the center line of Encinal Avenue to a point where the same is intersected by the southeasterly production of the line dividing lots two (2) and three (3) as shown on that certain map entitled, "Villa Lots at Fair Oaks" filed for record April 29, 1868, in Volume "C" of Maps at page 31, San Mateo County Records; thence northwesterly along said southeasterly production and continuing along the line dividing said lots two (2) and three (3), and lots six (6) and seven (7), as shown on said last mentioned map, and its production northwesterly to the centerline of Watkins Avenue; thence southwesterly along the centerline of Watkins Avenue to the northeasterly line of El Camino Real; thence southeasterly along the northeasterly line of El Camino Real to a point where the said northeasterly line is intersected by the northeasterly production of the center line of Aljandra Avenue; thence southwesterly along the said last mentioned northeasterly production to its intersection with the centerline of El Camino Real; thence southeasterly along the centerline of El Camino Real to its intersection with the centerline of Valparaiso Avenue; thence southwesterly along the centerline of Valparaiso Avenue to its intersection with the production northwesterly of the northeasterly line of lot one (1), as shown on "Referees Partition Map of Kate Johnson Estate" recorded February 26, 1907, in Volume 135 of Deeds at page 62, San Mateo County Records; thence southeasterly along said last mentioned northwesterly production and along the north easterly line of said lot one (1) and its production southeasterly to the centerline of Santa Cruz Avenue; thence southwesterly along the centerline of Santa Cruz Avenue to the centerline of Olive Avenue; thence southeasterly along the centerline of Olive Avenue to the centerline of Middle Avenue; thence northeasterly along the centerline of Middle Avenue to its intersection with the northwesterly production of the southwesterly line of lot twenty-five (25), as shown on the above mentioned "Referees Partition Map;" thence southeasterly along said production and along the southwesterly line of said lot twenty-five (25) to the centerline of said San Francisquito Creek, thence northeasterly along the centerline of said San Francisquito Creek following the meanderings thereof to the point of beginning.

WHEREFORE, the undersigned petitioners pray that all necessary and proper proceedings be taken and had under the provisions of said act for noticing and hearing said petition and for the organization and incorporation of said above described and bounded territory under provisions of the aforementioned act, and that such territory as so incorporated shall be known as the City of Menlo Park.

SANTA CRUZ ROAD CONDITIONS GOOD

The coast road from San Francisco to Santa Cruz is in excellent condition with the exception of approximately thirteen miles between Halfmoon Bay and San Gregorio, according to the Touring Department of the National Automobile Club. Several crews are at work on the bad stretch, resurfacing it, and extremely poor conditions will be encountered where the work is in progress. From San Gregorio to Santa Cruz is in exceptionally good condition.

Periodic Physical Examinations Tend To Lengthen Life

By Elmer Hess, M. D.
Erie, Pa.
Member Gorgas Memorial

During recent years certain life insurance companies have offered free physical examinations to their policy holders. This is an added expense of many thousands of dollars to these companies and many persons have asked the question, "Why, when these concerns are in a money making business, do they spend money that isn't necessary and in such enormous amounts?" The answer is easy.

These big insurance companies realize that if their policy holders can be induced to have an examination every six months or every year small defects will be discovered early, and, if corrected before they become serious, the policy holders will live longer, thus benefiting the companies far more than the cost of examinations.

Insurance companies have blazoned the path for health programs because their records reveal that many causes of sickness and death are preventable. The public owes a debt of extreme gratitude to the insurance companies for the knowledge of health matters they have disseminated.

To keep any machine running properly it must be regularly inspected and cared for. The better care given the longer the machine lasts and the better it serves. With a machine one is fortunate in that when a single part wears out a new part can be procured. This is impossible with the human body.

God has given each of us a machine that will run so long, with care. Twenty years ago, the average longevity of the human machine was about thirty-five years. Today, thanks to modern medical science and an awakening public knowledge, the average span of life in America is about forty-five years. What we all want to do is to live. The average span of life can and will be gradually increased. You can do your bit toward this end. Go to your family physician at least once a every year; once every six months would be better. Ask him to give you a complete examination. If he finds anything wrong, have it corrected at once. If he finds something wrong with some part of your anatomy, but doesn't know exactly what it is, he will send you to a specialist whose training and experience will enable him to diagnose the condition. He will advise you how to correct the abnormality and, corrected early, the span of your own life will be greatly increased and your usefulness to yourself, your family and the world at large will be greatly enhanced.

Your doctor would rather be kept busy giving you periodical examinations than be worried over you during a serious illness. Wouldn't you rather spend an hour twice a year with your physician that spend two weeks in bed and six months convalescing after a serious illness that could have been prevented? The great majority of diseases to which human flesh is heir can be prevented or at least controlled very often with less cost in both time and money to yourself if taken care of early.

Periodical physical examinations pay big dividends to insurance companies, and they will pay you bigger ones. Don't forget that your family physician is your best friend. Use him.

LOCAL INFECTIONS

By E. Morrison, M. D.

Member Gorgas Memorial

In almost every rural community there are patches of rough, neglected ground perhaps sovered by undergrowth where "varmints" make their homes and from which they issue to commit depredations upon nearby henroosts, pig pens or other parts of a well ordered farm. Similarly, there are many and various anatomical irregularities in the human body which afford nesting places for many varieties of disease-producing germs. From these nesting places, germs travel through lymph channels or in the blood to other structures adjacent or remote and there cause an active inflammation. The anatomical part from which these germs begin their excursions is called a point of focal infection.

Many diseases are easily traced to some point of focal infection. Pains commonly called rheumatic, affecting muscles or joints, are usually due to such origin. The symptoms of exophthalmic goiter are often aggravated by the same cause. It has recently been demonstrated that stone in the kidney and ulcer of the stomach may be due to the same cause. That Bright's disease and valvular heart disease are often due to a focal infection has long been well known.

It is always easier to keep out of trouble than to get out when once in. It is easier to prevent arthritis, Bright's disease, or valvular heart disease than it is to cure them. Some forms of anthritis defy all attempts to cure. Chronic Bright's disease is incurable. A valvular heart lesion always remains, except in children, where under good management it may disappear. Attention to possible points of focal infection may prevent the onset of a very serious disease.

The tonsils are frequent offenders. They are situated and constructed so that they offer favorable conditions for the develoopmnt and permanent location of germs. They are closely related to the lymphatic system and their blood supply is abundant. Through the chain of lymph glands infection may be carried into the neck and even into the chest. Through the blood vessels infection may be carried to any part of the body.

The teeth are also frequent offenders. An abscess at the root of a touth becomes a breeding place for germs that enter the blood stream and colonize distant parts of the body. An abscess at the root of a devitalized tooth is painless and gives no warning of its presence. Pyorrhea is a disease that often gives rise to transplanted infections. Many persons have decayed teeth, filled with putrid masses or they may have partially denuded roots covered with pus exuding from beneath the gums. How can they put their food into such a filty mouth?

There are many other sources of focal infection. The sinuses connected with the nose, the mastoid cells, the gall bladder, the appendix, the kidneys and other organs may become focal points of infection. It often requires a careful and diligent search to find the real seat of trouble. The individual should not draw the conclusion that his tonsils should be removed or that his teeth should be extracted. His disorder may arise from some other focal point and a careful examination may be necessary to locate it.

foods won't dry out in a refrigerator cooled by ICE

An intensely dry cold is desirable for keeping certain foods a great length of time, but it is not desirable for preserving many delicate foods in common household use.

Lettuce, for example, will dry out and wither quickly in some forms of refrigeration, where the cold is too dry.

In a properly constructed ICE-COOLED refrigerator, the cold air is neither too dry nor too moist. It maintains exactly the right humidity for keeping foods pure, wholesome and fresh. Only Ice does this!

Waner Brothers Boost Pirates

Bicyclist Tries to Make New Record

The transcontinental bicycle champion of North America, Clarence W. Wagner, has started on his third trip across the United States in an attempt to break his own record of 3,229 miles in 24 days 12 hours. Wagner left Newport Bay, near Los Angeles, and will cross California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

He expects to average 130 miles a day.

Bush O. K. for 1928

So far as Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh baseball club, is concerned, Donie Bush can manage the Pirates again next year.

Commenting on rumors that Bush was not to be retained at the close of the present season, Dreyfuss said that "In my eyes, Bush has been a successful manager this year, and I have not thought of changing pilots for 1928."

After defeating the league-leading Portland club of the New England League, Stanley O. Robinson, '27, of Tufts, is well on his way to impressing the Boston Braves' management as a good prospect to take south with the team next spring.

Tris Speaker May Lead Indians Again

In the western sector of the American League, questions are still being asked whether or not Tris Speaker is to succeed Bucky Harris as manager of the Washington club. The same old answers are being made, too, that there isn't a chance of such a happening.

Though Speaker is inclined to hold his tongue, his friends in Cleveland say that with Ban Johnson out of the seats of the mighty, Speaker will probably go back to that city as manager of the Indians in 1928.

LOTT TO FINISH SCHOOL AT BROWN

Tennis Star Makes Withdrawal From Chicago.

The Middle West's best tennis prospect in this generation, George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, has decided to switch his university training from Chicago to Brown.

George is only 20 years old..

Lott won national rank at the bottom of the first ten last summer, and in January left the University of Chicago, where he had never become scholastically eligible for athletics, to play winter tennis in Florida. One victory there over Tilden encouraged him, but the "old master" has beaten him twice since.

George M. Lott, Jr.

He entered Chicago with some reputation as a baseball pitcher and basket ball forward, in addition to the title of junior tennis champion of the country, but lack of concentration on his studies kept him off the varsity teams.

"Lott stands today," said one of his University of Chicago professors, "where Vincent Richards stood at 20, the flaming youth of his day on the courts. And unlike Vinnie, he is not pressed by economic necessity."

Four Persons Known to Have Picked Blue Blood

Only four known persons, including the owner, bet on a horse that paid odds of 182 to 1 at the Homewood track near Chicago the other day, and when the long-shot came home a victor, two almost swooned, and another, a negro stable boy, turned handsprings until he was exhausted.

It was the Kentucky thoroughbred Blue Blood who wrote race horse history for Illinois when she finished two lengths in front in the five furlongs race. The horse's owner, Carter Everett, apparently was the only person in the park who wagered more than $2. He wagered $20 "on the nose," and collected $3,651. He was overcome when the odds were posted.

A glass of water had to be hurried to a woman in the clubhouse who bordered on hysterics when she saw that her $2 ticket across the board had returned her $610.20. A man near the judges' stand who had squandered $2 on a win ticket was overcome with joy when he saw he had gained $363.10. The negro stable boy appeared to be the only other person who had bet $2 on the horse.

Ray Kremer Has Reached Hurling Peak of Career

Ray Kremer has reached the pitching peak at a time when most hurlers are on the down grade. Just turned thirty-one, he led the National league twirlers last year and has gotten off to a flying start this season.

He seemed doomed to end his pitching days in the minors, spending seven of his best playing years with the Oakland team in the Pacific Coast league, until the Pirates corralled him in 1924. Starting his fourth season with Pittsburgh his records show 58 major league triumphs and only 24 defeats for a percentage of about .700.

He has improved with age, topping the league's moundsmen last season with 20 victories and 6 defeats—yet a dozen years ago his health wasn't good enough for him to get a trial with the New York Giants. He was called in from the Pacific northwest in 1915 by John McGraw but sent back to the same territory when illness cost him his chance for a tryout.

Isbell Dog Fancier

Frank Isbell, the big baseball man from the West, is quite a dog fancier. He has a very large kennel of chows at Van Nuys, Calif., and owns some of the best dogs west of the Mississippi. But his greatest winning has been done with ch. Yuan Chu of El Cher, the sensational male bought from the kennels of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Prinz at Ridgewood, N. J. Another recent addition of note is the undefeated Lui Song, a remarkably fine looking bitch.

Men Marooned

Facing the drive of the wind, the team fought its way slowly down over the frozen tundra. With night the frost stiffened, and the needle-pointed barrage of snow crystals stung the faces of men and dogs like the lash of myriad whips. Heads down to avoid the agony, men and dogs swung away from the thrust of the wind, until the half-breed, straightening again, felt the bleat of the blizzard on his right cheek, and changed their course.

Often, unable to face the burst of edged torment on their noses, the dogs lay down, backs to the drive, refusing to move. Then, Garth and Etienne, lifting them to their feet, dragged the team and sled until the huskies again leaned into their collars. Blindly into the murk wailing them in plunged the tireless half-breed, leading the way to the shelter of the far timber and food. With face frostbitten from exposure in feeling for direction, hands numb from untangling with mittenless fingers the frozen harness of the dogs, Etienne plunged down the sloping tundra. His face buried in his hood and constantly fighting to save his numbing fingers, Garth followed. There flashed through his mind tales told at the post of Crees caught, as they were, on the high barrens, and found stiff in the snow. But, as he doubled against the drive of the blizzard, blinded, unable to see the man ahead; often swinging off the trail while, holding true, the canny lead-dog passed him with the team, Garth Guthrie never doubted that they would win to the timber and shelter.

Two grinding hours of slavery on lacerated feet into the pin-pointed fury, and turning in their harness, the spent dogs lay down, refusing to move. Numb to threats or urging, the heart-broken huskies, crusted with ice, had made their choice. Rather than the torture which flayed their faces, they would lie, backs to the barrage, while the withering wind slowly stiffened them to ice.

There was nothing the men could do. The dogs were done.

"I turn dem loose. We hunt de timber," Etienne shouted into Garth's hood. With his knife he slashed the dogs from their frozen harness, but the huskies lay while the snow beat over them, refusing their freedom. Shot, white-coated from nose to tail, gingerly muzzled the motionless shapes. Castor, alone, resented the act by a feeble snap. Lifting their heads, and shaking them, Garth in turn called their names, but the numbness of the white death already was in their blood. Gently he lifted Castor to his feet, but the leader sank limply to the snow.

"Good-by, boys!" he called to the white shapes by the sled. "You gave us all you had. Good-by!"

"Dey weel freeze in ten minute—nevair feel eet now," shouted Etienne, his voice breaking as he turned from a last word with his favorite Castor.

Shelter and fire! All thought of the food frozen under the sled cover had left them. The windbreak of the spruce meant fire, warmth, life—but how far was the timber? With the ax from the sled the two men started, Shot at their heels. A hundred yards and Etienne stumbled, stopped—while Garth lunged into him.

The man on his knees turned to the other. "De spruce—eet ees here!" His snowshoes had fouled a dwarf spruce on the edge of the timber. Swiftly now they plunged ahead, seeking the heavier growth. In a hundred yards they were in thick bush.

While Guthrie scraped out a fire-hole with a snowshoe, Etienne gathered dry spruce twigs and started a fire; then slashed down saplings and soon had a comforting heat in the snow-hole behind the wind-break. With the warmth the men rubbed the circulation into numbed hands and faces. But out on the tundra in the drive of the blizzard lay five loyal friends, stiffening under the drift.

Leaving the fire Garth and Etienne started to back-track to the sled. Guthrie, with Shot alternately plunging ahead and returning to find his master, had gone but a short distance into the blackness with its shot-like hail of fine snow, when he found that he had drifted away from the half-breed. Too dark to locate tracks in the snow which filled at once with drift, he kept on with the wind on his left shoulder. Suddenly he missed Shot. He stopped and shouted, hoping the dog was near, but the airedale was lost, or had left him. Why?

Continuing down wind, counting his paces, at last Guthrie knew that he had passed the sled in the blind murk, so circled. Etienne had said the dogs would freeze in ten minutes—and he had missed them; lost the chance to save the huskies who had given him their all that grim December day—. Then a white body shouldered into his legs—Shot!

"Where did you go?" he shouted into the dog's ear. But the excited beast left him to plunge into the storm—then returned to seize Garth's mittened hand.

Following the dog for a space he stumbled against a mound in the snow—the sled! He groped for the heaps that marked the frozen dogs, but in vain. They were gone, Etienne? He had got them up into the spruce.

In his joy Garth knelt and hugged the ice-sheeted body of the great airedale whose tongue found his master's face.

Food!

The sled-load was untouched. Etienne had had but one thought—to save his dogs. So Garth slashed the frozen lashings and reached a grub-bag, tea pail and kettle; then started for the camp, following blindly the dog who nosed out the tracks of the team. The dull glow of the fire through the blur of snow led them over the last yards. There, on his knees, Etienne was working over his huskies' legs.

"Grub and a pail!" shouted Garth, as he scooped up snow for tea. "Good old Castor! You feel better now?"

The husky, sprawled near the blazing logs, lifted his tail in response.

"Der moccasin save der feet," said Etienne. "Good t'ing dey cut feet on de bush so we put on de shoe."

"But how did you get them up to follow you? They were close to frozen when we left them."

Etienne grinned as he pinched and rubbed a pair of hairy paws. "Do husky ees ver' smart feller. Dey were all tire out—but not start to freeze w'en we left dem. Een leetle tam, dey so tire and hungree, dey freeze. But Etienne tell dem dat supper start soon, and dey come to life, toute suite. Den I drag dem here."

"I'll go back for blankets," said the much relieved Guthrie, and with Shot, went to the sled and returned with robes, and the whitefish for the famished huskies.

Later, snug before their fire in the wind-break of the timber, two men and six dogs slept the sleep of exhaustion, while the norther drove across the white tundra.

* * * * * * *

Although the wind ceased and the snow ceased by noon of the following day, the crippled dogs held Guthrie to his camp. With his glasses he located the smoke of cooking fires in the scrub across the basin, and in the early afternoon Etienne slipped his moccasins into the thongs of his snowshoes and started for the camp of the hunters, while Garth, whose knowledge of Cree was limited, stayed with the dogs.

As Garth watched a boiling kettle of salt wavy, and bannock baking in a tilted frying pan, the dogs announced the return of Etienne through the dusk. Much depended upon what the head man had learned, and Guthrie probed the immobile features as the half-breed thrust his shoes in a drift and stepped to the fire.

With the Warmth the Men Rubbed the Circulation Into Numbed Hands and Faces.

"Well, what news?"

From the gravity of his expression it was clear that Savanne was struggling with a problem difficult and baffling.

"Ver' queer t'ing—ver' queer!" was the unresponsive answer as Etienne dropped his mittens on their neck thong to warm his hands at the fire.

"What is?"

"What dose Cree tell me. Dere are eight hunter wid camp een dis valley here; some from Elkwan and some from down de coast. I talk to dem all. W'at dey say ees ver' strange."

"Well, for heaven's sake shoot!"

"Souci has been here two—t'ree day back. He invite dem to the Canoe Riviere w'ere he mak' de beeg medicine."

"Did he get them to promise to take their fur to the schooner?"

"No! Mokoman, he talk to dem strong, too, but dey not know w'at dey do w'en I say de strait froze. Dey have mooch fox—silver, black and cross."

"They are going to Souci's pow-wow?"

"Yes, and hunter down de riviere—all weel go."

"How far is it?"

"Not far—ten mile—mebbe more, ovair de hill."

Garth's mouth shut hard. "Well, Etienne, we haven't been invited, but we'll surely attend that party."

Etienne nodded. "But dees Souci, w'y he tak' de troubl' to do dees t'ing?"

"He's going to tell the hunters that the spirits are the friends of McDonald and they must take their fur to the schooner."

"I feex dat for heem. I tell de Cree ovair dere dat you and I watch de schooner at night, an' see fire come out of her an' de devil dance on de mast. I scare dose squaw so bad, one had de fit."

"How about the men?"

"Dey wait to see Souci—but dey are scare."

"Where is this Mokoman?"

"He has gone to de Canoe. He was not wid Souci."

"Well, we head for the Canoe at daylight. Will the dogs be able to travel? If not, we go without them."

"Ah-hah, de dogs can walk to de Canoe."

"We may not persuade the hunters to cross the ice with us, but we can make it hot for sorcerer Souci when he tries his mumbo-jumbo. Will he dare make his medicine when he sees us?"

Savanne scratched his head before replying. "Somet'ing een dis dat ees queer. Dey say Souci has not met Mokoman, an' he was here on de islan' long tam. Dere was troubl', too, wid French companee, down de Rabbit."

"What kind of trouble—fighting?"

"Ah-hah! Dis Blackbeard run de French Cree ovair de ice—drive dem off de islan'."

"He did, did he? Well, that will cook McDonald's goose for next year. The government will have the police up here waiting for that schooner on her return. Run 'em off the island? Good! I only wish he'd try that with us. I wouldn't mind meeting up with Monsieur Breault of St. Johns."

Etienne drew a long skinning knife from his inside sash. "I would lak to cut dem whiskeer wid dis—ver' short, een de neck."

"I'll bet you would, you old knife-fighter! Like the job you did on One-Eyed Louis, up at God's lake."

Etienne squinted along the edge of the knife—then ran a thumb over it.

"Breault insult ma femme," he said quietly, and returned the knife to its sheath.

In the blue dawn the dog-team pulled out of camp bound down river to the west fork, which would take them north through a gash in the barrens to the watershed of the Canoe. The norther had left much drifted snow and the stiff legs of the huskies cut the pace to a walk. Shot, exuberant after his two days of enforced idleness, ranged to the front and flanks in search of ptarmigan, rabbit and mouse. Along the river, the broken-out drift in the old trail marked the hunters on their way to the rendezvous on the Canoe. It was evident that the Cree trappers in the north of the island were bound for the medicine lodge of the old shaman. Twenty to thirty hunters with a catch of at least one hundred foxes would gather to witness the necromancy of the conjurer. On the power of the old man's magic would depend the destination of twenty thousand dollars' worth of fox pelts. Whether Elkwan or the schooner at Seal cove was to enjoy a rich Christmas trade would be determined by the ability of Saul and his spirit coadjutors to nullify the superstitious fears aroused by the sinister rumors of the crafty Etienne. It would be a battle worth watching, thought Garth, keen for the meeting in the lonely valley of the Canoe between the grasping Cree who had betrayed him and the resourceful Savanne. But one condition he had imposed on the half-breed—that there should be no bloodshed. They had come to Akimiski to save the trade, of the future, as well as the present, and under no circumstances was the head man to abuse or threaten either Saul or his sons. He, Guthrie, would have something to say concerning the long arm of the company in its future dealings with the man who had deserted to the enemy; but the command was—no fighting.

"If he shows up at the pow-wow, and interferes, I'l leave him to you."

"I tak' good care of heem," grunted the other.

At the fork they left the main river trail to follow the branch leading north.

As the tender-footed huskies drew the sled at a walk or slow trot, Shot reveled in the game sign of the scrub along shore. On a foray into the timber, the trail of the snowshoe-rabbit, which had first lured him, was crossed by that of a more enticing fox. Keen with the lust for the hunt, Shot followed the trail back through the scrub and out into the open barren on the shoulders of the valley. There, far from the river, he stopped. Before him the webbed imprint of snowshoes cut the fox tracks he followed. The dog sniffed curiously, but it was a vague, unfamiliar scent that the fresh trail carried. Slowly at first, then at a lope, he followed it down through the timber. As he neared the river the voices of Garth and Etienne drifted faintly in from the ice. The dog was puzzled. From his rigid war training he had learned silence when business was afoot. And this seemed business. By the hour he had watched shell holes—from trenches—had patrolled forest, as at present, in absolute silence. In some occult way the keen-witted dog seemed that again, there in the white north far from Flemish battle fields, he was at his old trade, guarding with quivering nostrils, eyes and ears tense, the safety of the man out there on the ice.

On he went, weaving in and out of the thick scrub, relentless as a wolf. Suddenly the airedale stiffened, hair rising like brush bristles along his spine. Near the shore in the thicket ahead was something dark, motionless.

The war dog froze, stiff as the spruce above him, one paw suspended in air. A vague scent reached his working nostrils. Then, like a lynx through the dusk, the airedale drifted up the trail.

Out on the river ice the voice of Garth called, "Here, Shot!" But the head of the dog did not turn. His small, terrier eyes never left the shape on the snow. He knew that the lean, brown barrel thrust before the dark body was a rifle—a maker of fire and death.

Three—four steps nearer, then gathering beneath him the steel springs which were the muscles of his legs, the airedale leaped. As Shot's fangs ripped into the shoulder of the Indian's capote, the rifle exploded. A bullet ricocheted from the frozen sled cover and whined away over the river. Two men dropped behind the sled, as the team stopped. Reaching up, Etienne wrenched his cased rifle from its lashings and fired twice below a shred of blue smoke hanging in the spruce, where an enraged dog silently grappled with an unknown enemy. But his fire was not returned. There, under the trees, an Indian frantically fought to turn his rifle on the maddened brute who had ripped parka to ribbons and hurled him backward to the snow. Parrying the snap of punishing fangs with a blow of his gun butt, the Indian gained his feet, to meet another lunge before he aimed his gun. Again the dog leaped, carrying the man with him. Fangs slashed at bared throat—a choked cry—the airedale's jaws shut on dark flesh—ripped—and the would-be assassin lay on the snow with a torn throat.

POULTRY

IMPORTANT JOBS IN CHICKEN YARD

There are three jobs with the farm poultry that need to be done early, the earlier, the better.

Right now is the time to cull the hens, dip both hens and pullets to destroy their lice and transfer the pullets to the laying house.

Culling is a simple job.

To see a culling demonstration, it appears to consist of a lot of fuss and frills, but the amateur will do a pretty efficient job if he culls out at this time of year the hens that have yellow shanks and beaks and that already have their new feathers for winter.

The yellow shanks and beaks indicate that the hens are not laying while the new feathers generally indicate that they will not lay—until spring.

While the weather is still warm is the time to dip all the chickens.

Don't think your hens have no lice—all hens have them and don't wait until it is so cold you will have to dust them.

Dusting is all right if one has a gas mask and plenty of time.

Sodium fluoride is the stuff to use in the dip.

Each year, many excellent early-hatched pullets are thrown into a molt because the owner delays too long getting them transferred to the laying house.

When pullets get to laying, it doesn't take much of a fright to throw them into a molt.

Pullets that have been roosting in the trees often molt when they are transferred to the laying house.

Fall and Winter Eggs Are Most Profitable

Fall and winter months may be termed the profit months in poultry culture for the reason that the big difference in production between heavy-laying flocks and flocks which are not profitable comes during that season of the year. Almost any healthy hen will lay well toward spring.

It is an established fact that a flock must average approximately 100 eggs per hen per year in order to return the owner a profit. The difference between the monthly flock averages of good flocks and poor flocks comes mainly during the fall and winter months. In order words, the owners of profitable flocks have utilized methods which increase production at a time of year when fresh eggs are scarce and therefore higher in price.

Early hatches of early maturing birds could be set down as one of the most important points in getting heavier fall and winter production. Pullets that start laying during the latter part of October are from hatches that came before May first, usually before April first. They are birds that have been well fed and are fully developed. Good birds of this character will produce greatly over 100 eggs per year if they are properly fed and housed.

All-Mash Feed System Recommended to Some

The all-mash system of feeding is to be recommended to people who are pressed for time. A well-built mash hopper when filled with a good ration will do a great deal toward securing proper growth on young birds. If young birds are forced to rustle for a large portion of their feed, they will make only slow growth and the result will be a lot of undersized pullets for the winter. Such pullets do not make profitable winter layers nor will the cockerels bring satisfactory prices when put on the market.

Poultry Facts

More than mere abundance is needed in the poultry ration.

* * *

* * *

One should encourage chicks to roost at the earliest opportunity. As long as they roost on the floor, danger from crowding is ever present.

* * *

Never let your drinking founts get slimy. Scald them out and give a good cleaning every few days.

* * *

The greater the egg production per hen the greater the labor income, cash receipts, and cash returns above feed.

* * *

Hens that lose in weight usually go into a molt. Therefore it is essential to watch the weight of the hens and see that they are getting sufficient feed to maintain their body needs.

* * *

On the larger farms culling is carried on rapidly in the fall and the poor birds go to market by the crate.

* * *

There is no other fowl or stock that will deteriorate as quickly as turkeys with inbreeding. This is one of the great faults and the hardest lesson many have had to learn.

* * *

There are people who have the right variety of fowls, who house and feed them properly, and yet who can not obtain eggs early in the winter because their fowls are too old.

* * *

Although poultry consumes feed that otherwise would be wasted on the farm, usually too much dependence is placed upon this fact.

* * *

Small, immature pullets are not only unprofitable egg producers but are a menace to the flock as they are readily susceptible to colds and roup.

* * *

Hens sometimes eat their eggs because of lack of lime or meat in their ration. Egg eating is hard to cure, and persistent egg-eaters are better killed and eaten.

JERSEY FOR SCHOOL AND SPORTS; SHAWL-COLLARS ON FALL COATS

IT'S jersey cloth here and jersey cloth there and jersey cloth everywhere in the daytime mode for fall. If the jersey be not in solid color, then it is striped, and if it happen to be not striped then the dressmaker or the couturier conjures a stripe effect by sewing bands of various colors together. If not the stripe theme, then a modish compose is achieved in the way of contrasting insets of jersey introduced at the waistline of the frock.

Which goes to show that there is anything but sameness recorded by the present jersey vogue. The new tweed jersey is decidedly "good looking," while the jersey which richly gleams with gold and silver interworkings is all that fancy can picture in the way of a handsome medium for frock and blouse.

Jersey three-piece costumes figure prominently in the Paris sports mode for fall. These are fashioned somewhat in this wise: A deep wine jersey skirt and sleeveless cardigan to match with a rose shade jumper; a jersey cardigan buttoning over a blouse of jersey made sweater style and gaily yarn-embroidered, the skirt being plaited just as if it were silk or satin. That is one of the interesting things about the mode this season, it plaits anything and everything without regard to whether it be jersey, velvet, satin or cloth.

Jersey for school wear is ideal, and the stores are showing the most likable models that the artistry of the stylist can produce. The cunningest sort of jersey dresses are featured for children, such as a model in two tones trimmed with wee cutout felt flowers, also a toast-colored jersey with gay bouquets done in wool yarn, or a more conventional pattern embroidery in peasant color and design.

Two attractive frocks of jersey are shown here. The one to the left displays a cluster of side plaits to the left front of the skirt. The collar and cuffs are piped with crepe de chine and the small breast pocket is embroidered to match the crepe.

The other dress stresses inverted kick plaits in the skirt. The collar is adjustable to either high-button style or open. These winsome frocks are designed in all the newest colorings.

Furred more lavishly than ever, is the style message brought by autumn's advance guard of cloth coat fashions. The latest whim of the mode is to contrast light cloth, preferably the new pale browns and toast shades, or beige, with an enrichment of dark fur, as defined by the model in the picture.

This handsome coat also declares that shawl collars are "in" again. Multitudes of the newer coats bear testimony to its return to favor. Even fur coats are shawl-collared this season.

There is also much emphasis placed on side fastenings, in proof of which the coat illustrated bears witness. Another new "wrinkle" in the matter of styling is the intricate manipulation of underarm seamwork and tucks.

ATTRACTIVE FROCKS OF JERSEY

CLOTH COAT LAVISHLY FURRED

Square-rule slot tucks are skillfully introduced at the sides of the coat pictured. The importance of this underarm fashioning cannot be overstated. Sometimes clusters of sunburst tucks are arranged in connection with the side seaming, again graduated tucks in tiers "do the trick."

As to fabric, autumn mode discriminates in no uncertain terms between the sports coat and the coat for dressy occasions. Sturdy fabrics like tweed and cheviot and Scotch woolens in fascinating novelty patternings are assigned exclusively to the sports mode, with the very soft finishes, such as "kitten's ear" broadcloth, suede cloths and notably velvet, as selected mediums for the dressier coats.

A charming play is being made on clever linings. Applique and embroidery in elaborate design enliven the new linings. Exotic birds spread their brilliantly stitched wings across these linings, to be revealed whenever the coat is thrown back.

There is an interesting sidelight thrown on cloth cloakings which simulate fur. These are being accepted by the "best people" this season. Black broadtail cloth is especially favored for ensembles and coats.

Wet-Weather Ensembles

Most wet-weather ensembles are as depressing as the weather, which is, after all, quite wrong. What the clever woman wears is something that will bring a touch of color to otherwise drab surroundings.

Marcels

Marcels have not the strangle-hold on the imagination that they formerly had, and often a smart coiffeur shows simply a small wave, or a few round curls, or no wave at all.

New Scarf

The designers have not yet exhausted all their efforts in regard to shawls, as proved by a striking one seen recently. It was made of sapphire blue silk and embroidered with large red roses.

Old-Time Embroidery

Petit point embroidery became popular during the Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries. It was much practiced in France, where it was known as "au petit point."

BOOST FOR DR. JIMMIE'S HOSPITAL

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

MRS. WAINWRIGHT MOSIER was having one of her spells, a fact telepathically communicated to all of her neighbors by the general air of gloom about the house and by the fact that her next-door neighbor, Mrs. Tom Parker, was hurrying her six children out to play in order that she might wait upon the invalid. Every one said it was a shame the way a wealthy woman like Mrs. Mosier imposed upon a poor creature like Mrs. Parker.

"This time it's serious, Carrie" moaned Mrs. Mosier on this special occasion from the depths of her lavender plush davenport. "Everything always comes to a climax with me. I've said it time and time again. Poor dear Wain understood and he warned me—" Mrs. Mosier sniffed audibly into a violet-scented handkerchief.

"Anything but a tumor, Carrie, anything but a tumor! It's what I've been dreading all these years and you know what one dreads is bound to come, Carrie."

"Don't you worry now, Miss' Mosier."

"I wouldn't be half so frightened, Carrie, if I were in the city where I would get the proper medical care. If I should have to call a doctor in this little suburban town I know I'd just naturally pass away."

Her tragic tones had diminished to a whisper at the terrible thought. "If Wain were only here," rose in crescendo.

"Everybody says the new doctor, Jimmie Taylor, is a fine young fellow, Miss' Mosier."

"Any doctor who would let people call him Jimmie can't be of much account. Whoever heard of such a thing! I'm feeling worse, Carrie."

"Do let me make you a nice cup of tea."

"Tea'll only make it worse. Put your hand there on my stomach and see if you don't feel a terrible big lump."

Mrs. Parker felt obediently, placing a large wrinkled hand tenderly on the spot indicated. Suddenly over her thin, placid face there passed a look of alarm.

"You feel it, Carrie?" Mrs. Mosier's chin quivered and she ran her hands wildly through her carefully marcelled hair.

"I do, Miss' Mosier."

"Call that Jimmie doctor quick. I knew it would come, and here, of all places! To think I should have to be operated upon here by a know-nothing doctor! Oh, I don't dare to think!" frantically holding her side and her temples alternately. And then for the first time in her life, Mrs. Mosier fainted.

Dr. Jimmie Taylor arrived promptly in his built-over car in response to Mrs. Parker's tremulous call. With the assistance of Mrs. Parker, he got Mrs. Mosier safely into the car with him. When Mrs. Mosier whimpered that she would die if Mrs. Parker did not come, too, that kindly soul scrambled into the back seat. After a few wheezy coughs they were merrily on their way to the hospital—merrily so far as the doctor was concerned.

"Fix you up in no time!" said he, grinning.

Mrs. Mosier resented the grin, but since she must lean on some one, she felt a certain sense of security in a doctor's presence.

It was a well-known fact that Dr. Taylor's hospital was not run on a paying basis. The suburbanites preferred the city hospitals and specialists. Still Dr. Taylor was canny and full of hope. He knew that if he could persaude one of the social leaders in the little town to come as a patient to the hospital, the precedent would be all that would be necessary. But thus far his most enthusiastic cases had been charity cases. Today, as he sped toward the hospital with his wealthy charge, his heart was light. He would at least have a chance to prove his theory and his worth.

"Don't leave me for a minute, Carrie," Mrs. Mosier pleaded as they assisted her out of the car.

"But the children—" began Mrs. Parker.

"Don't you worry about them, my dear. You need a rest from your household as much as I need you near me. If I have to stay in the hospital, you're going to stay right here with me. Mrs. Sims would be only too glad to earn a little extra money taking care of them. I'll pay all the expenses and you'll get a well-deserved rest."

"I agree with Mrs. Mosier," the doctor interposed heartily. "You'll do good all around if you do as Mrs. Mosier says."

"Thank you, doctor," Mrs. Mosier said in a different tone from that she had used with him before, and for the first time she looked straight into his fine, sensitive eyes.

Mrs. Mosier went through her examination in a state of nervous excitement. All of her weak spots were relentlessly ferreted out and marked down imposingly on a chart. The doctor made no reply to her many questions. The cool, white-clad nurse was as enigmatic as a sphinx. However, after what seemed hours of torture and proddings to Mrs. Mosier, Dr. Jimmie Taylor helped her to a sitting posture, looked her straight in the eyes and told her that the sooner she submitted to an operation the better. There was something about this serious, young doctor that robbed her of all command. Wain would have liked him, she thought, as she meekly intrusted her hope for an earthly future into his slim, young hands.

Close upon the heels of the decision, the family counselor puffed up the steps to attend to the good lady's last will and testament, and no less a personage than the archbishop himself, who happened to be visiting in the suburb at the time, administered the last sacrament.

"She is completely anaesthetized, doctor," the nurse at Mrs. Mosier's head announced crisply as she held the limp hand and counted the slow pulse beat.

"Lift the mask," the doctor commanded in a sharp tone as he passed his hand for the second time indignantly over Mrs. Mosier's torso.

"Doctor!" the young nurse questioned in spite of her training, "are you quite all right?"

"Yes," he answered tersely to the two nurses and the hospital assistant who drew nearer. Then, pointing to the prostrate Mrs. Mosier, he added, "And so is she, See," he continued, his voice rising in spite of his efforts to control it, "this woman here was suffering from a nerve congestion in her abdomen and all she needed was the complete relaxation afforded by the ether to relieve it. Don't smile," he interposed sadly upon seeing their unsuppressed grins, "it is no smiling matter for this hospital. If it wasn't against my principles, I'd go ahead and operate anyway," and he chucked his instruments into their cases. "Take her back to her room and don't say a word of this to any one, yet." He then flung himself out of the room, almost falling over the trembling and speechless Mrs. Parker who had been waiting prayerfully in the hallway.

When Mrs. Mosier came from under the influence of the ether she was hardly prepared for the amazing revelation that Dr. Taylor made to her. The wonderstruck Carrie was scarcely less impressed as she sat down on the clean white hospital cot surrounded by bouquets of gorgeous flowers. Mrs. Mosier listened dumbly while Carrie confirmed the news. Finally the patient grasped the situation by the forelock.

"Does any one know of this, doctor?"

"No one except those present in the operating room and they have promised silence until they know your wishes," he replied deferentially, a gleam of hope breaking through his well-concealed despair.

Mrs. Wainwright Mosier was silent a moment, studying Carrie with almost maternal compassion; then her gaze wandered over the flowers, and lastly to the notes of consolation and cheer on the table beside the bed.

"I've never broken my word yet, doctor," she said impressively, the hint of a twinkle in her eyes, "And I'm too thankful in my good fortune to start in doing it now. There is no woman in this town who needs a rest as bad as Carrie, there," she raised her plump hand to silence a coming protest from Mrs. Parker. "Besides, I wouldn't want this joke on me to get out, so Carrie and I will stay here a couple of weeks and enjoy ourselves, if you don't mind. Nobody need ever know the difference. It will do your hospital good just to have people look at a patient like me. What do you say?"

King or Slave?

At each moment of a man's life he is either a king or a slave. As he surrenders to a wrong appetite, to any human weakness; as he falls prostrate in hopeless subjection to any condition, to any environment, to any failure, he is a slave. As he day by day crushes out human weakness, masters opposing elements within him, and day by day recreates a new self from the sin and the folly of his past—then he is king. He is a king ruling with wisdom over himself. Alexander conquered the whole world except—Alexander. Emperor of the earth, he was the servile slave of his own passions. —Exchange.

Peaks That Dot Moon Gigantic in Height

Though the moon is only about one-quarter the diameter of the earth, its surface features are on a scale so grand as to dwarf much of our earth scenery.

Near the lunar south pole, for example, Professor Pickering pointed out the Liebnitz range of mountains. "By measuring the shadows cast by these peaks we find that some of them rise from 25,000 to 30,000 feet above the plain," he said.

The earth has Mount Everest as its highest peak, 29,141 feet altitude and the earth is several times larger than the moon. If our terrestrial mountains were proportioned to the same scale as the lunar, heights we would have peaks rising from ten to fifteen miles above the sea.

On an even vaster scale are some of the volcanic craters which pit the moon.

"The crater Newton measures 143 miles in length by 69 miles in width," said Professor Pickering, "and is 24,000 feet deep. There are many lunar craters of more than 50 miles' diameter. The largest crater known on the earth, the Volcano Bay, in northern Japan, measures only 35 miles in diameter, but it is very exceptional, for the next largest terrestrial crater is but 15 miles across."—Prof. W. M. Pickering, quoted by George W. Gray in the American Magazine.

Getting Rid of Ants

To drive away these pests use ground cloves. Take a scant tablespoonful of ground cloves and wrap it in a piece of paper. Make several pieces like that and put two on each shelf and you will have no ants to bother.

CAP AND BELLS

NOT A POPULAR PERSON

It was a dark and stormy night in the Channel, and the officer, returning to his ship, slipped on the gangplank and fell into the seething water.

One of the men who witnessed the accident very pluckily went to the rescue and after a severe struggle brought him aboard.

The officer was profuse in his thanks.

"And tomorrow I'll thank you before the whole ship's company."

"For goodness sake, don't do that, sir," pleaded the hero in alarm. "If they thought I'd saved your life they'd half-kill me."—London Answers.

Standards of Living Highest in America

In one or two points there is a difference between actual conditions in the average American home and the general impression concerning them. On the whole a survey substantiates what had been generally believed. Bathtubs and sanitary plumbing are everywhere. Thirty-six towns from Maine to California have submitted to scrutiny. It is revealed that in villages, towns and cities standards of living are about equal, all being high. Americans are rightly proud of the physical comforts and conveniences put into almost every home by American mechanical ingenuity and American salesmanship. It is splendid to be able to keep clean easily, to talk to a relative a thousand miles away, to prepare a guaranteed pure-food meal in 15 minutes from sanitary cans, to motor, to keep a house dustless with an electric cleaner. But we may be missing some of the blessings of a more leisurely day, a writer in the New York Times comments. The pleasures of conversation about books, art, people or music are not catalogued. Perhaps they could not be made the subject of a scientific survey.

Handicapped

A certain big-game hunter, who was contemplating a trip to Africa, called at a sporting goods store and bought a large quantity of cartridges.

"I usually deal with your head office," he remarked to the man in charge. "But I dare say you will be able to send these for me?"

"Certainly, sir."

"Well, I want them to go to Nigeria."

The other looked blankly for a minute or so, then:

"I think you'd better give the order to our head office, sir,' he ventured. "You see, we've only a small boy with a bicycle here."

Many Uses for Prunes

Once a boarding house delight, the prune has worked itself to the top. It is now used in baking and in the manufacture of ice cream and candy. A fellowship in the food research, maintained at the University of California by the California Prune and Apricot Growers' association, used prune pulp as the basis for 19 different dishes.

America Wins Again

The title of most beautiful horsewoman of Paris was awarded to Olivier Barclay, an American, in a recent contest in the Bois de Boulogne. Miss Barclay rode the old-fashioned side saddle, and wore a dark blue shirt, gray coat, black bowler, black boots and white pique stock.

Midsummer Opening

"I came to Madrid with 1 cent and now I have ten thousand in the bank."

"And I know some one who came with nothing at all and in a few days he had opened a jeweler's shop."

"Marvelous! Where is this fellow?"

"In jail."—Madrid Buen Humor.

Feel Stiff and Achy?

TO feel constantly lame and achy is too often a sign of sluggish kidneys.

Sluggish action permits waste poisons to remain in the blood and is apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache. A common warning that the kidneys are not acting right is scanty or burning secretions.

Assist the kidneys at such times with Doan's Pills. Since 1885 Doan's have been winning friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Michigan.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and * * * my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."—Mrs. E. F. Bassett, 216 South Hayford Avenue, Lansing, Michigan.

Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere. It is a root and herb medicine and has been used by women for over fifty years.

Street Work at Atherton

The town of Atherton is planning considerable street work. Stockbridge avenue and Austin avenue are being paved at a cost of $25,000. These avenues run through the Selby tract, Tusculosa Polhemus, Ardmor and Ralston avenues are also to be paved at a cost of $30,000. Atherton is surely a progessive community, and is forging ahead. This is what incorporation does for a community. It will do the same for Menlo Park, if it will only incorporate.

John C. Davidson Killed

John Clay Davidson, a retired San Francisco jeweler, was killed in an automobile accident near Martin's Ferry on the Klamath river Sunday night. His car went over an embankment. After his retirement five years ago he purchased acreage in the Nash tract on the Willow road and had opened a real estate office. Mr. Davidson was just completing a cosy residence. He was a progressive citizen who loved his community and did the best he could to improve it. This section loses a good man and the community suffers the loss of one of its hardest workers.

The Davidsons at one time lived in Oregon, but resided in San Francisco for 24 years before coming to this community. They had acquired considerable property in North Palo Alto.

Bond Election in Atherton

The Town of Atherton will hold a bond election on Saturday to raise the sum of $35,000, to be used in erecting a town hall on the site owned by the municipality near the Southern Pacific depot. A meeting of the citizens was held last night to discuss the matter and to provide means of getting the voters to the polls. It is believed the election will be carried by a big vote.

Food Sale this Morning

The National Council of Catholic Women will hold a food sale in the new bank building on Santa Cruz avenue this morning at ten o'clock and continuing until the afternoon. A alrge supply of toothsome pies and cakes are to be offered for sale by the beautiful matrons and pretty maids of the council. Be sure and secure one or more of those pies and cakes like mother used to make.

Cards Games to Begin Sept. 28

The Menlo Parlor N. S. G. W. is planning a serial card game to begin on September 28 in Duff & Doyle hall. Four game are to be played and the winner is to receive a ten dollar gold piece. The other prizes to be won during every Wednesday evening are to be played and the winner is to receive a ten dollar gold piece. The other prizes to be won during every Wednesday evening are to be valuable and well worth trying for.

Applies for Letters

Bernadette Clark was granted in the Superior court at Redwood City letters of administration upon the estate of Martin L. Clark, who died on August 29. The estate is less than $10,000 in value. The heirs-at-law are Ettie L. Clark, the surviving widow, and three daughters, Bernadette, Louise, and Blanche Clark, all residents of Menlo Park.

The following is the week's program in Bianco's New Menlo Theatre Friday evening Fred Thompson in "Arizona Nights with Silver King New Serial, "King of the Jungles." Saturday Jack Mulhall in "See You in Jail" and Tom Tyler in "Senora Kids." Sunday and Monday Lon Chaney in "Mockery." Harry Langdon comedy. Tuesday Marie Prevost in "The Night Bride." Wednesday and Thursday Noah Berry, Geo. Bancroft and Mary Astor in "Through Riders."

Miss Kugelar Recovering

Miss Meta Kugeler is recovering from the effects of a sprained ankle suffered last Friday afternoon in San Francisco while witnessing the ceremonies attending the flight of Col. Lindbergh. A depression on the side walk was the cause of her fall.

A Baby Girl

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Porter are receiving the congratulations of their numerous friends on the birth of a daughter in San Francisco last Monday. Mrs. Porter and her baby are getting along nicely. The mother and daughter will arrive in Menlo Park in two weeks to spend an indefinite time here. The new arrival makes a group of three pretty children. Mrs. Porter before her marriage was Miss Lent, regarded as one of the most beautiful women in San Francisco.

Masons Lease Duff & Doyle Hall

The local lodge of Masons has leased Duff and Doyle hall for a period of three years. Carpenters and plumbers are at work renovating the ancient playhouse and will improve it so that it will be one of the finest halls on the peninsula. The little lodge room in the rear will remain and be under the supervision of the Native Sons and Daughters. Card games will still be held in the main hall which is to be carpeted and furnished in a manner that will add to the comfort and convenience of the players.

Change in Insurance Methods

On January last the fire underwriters of San Francisco adopted a resolution whereby it was agreed that insurance on dwellings in unincorporated towns would not be insured for a longer period than one year while in incorporated towns a residence may be insured for three years on a two year premium basis, thus a saving to the policy holders. This item of saving would be further inducement for the people of Menlo Park to incorporate. Other advantages will follow on the wake of incorporation. By all means let the people of Menlo Park be alive to their interests by voting for their own home government. The opportunity is at hand fet every citizen embrace it.

A Large Ham, Fat Turkey, Yum!

The National Council of Catholic Women will dispose of a large ham and a fine fat turkey for the Thanksgiving festival at its food sale to be held in the new bank building on Saturday. Come and endeavor to secure this bird and order for which will be given the winner so that it will be in prime condition when the holiday comes around.

A Morning Meditation

by O Lawrence Hawthorne

What may I ask of the glad New Year,
Whose golden dawning paints the eastern sky?
What may I hope to accomplish here
As days and seasons move so swiftly by?
What shall I promise myself to do
Before this priceless year is through?

Help me to live in a manly way,
And earn the comradeship of loyal friends.
Let me know laughter and wholesome play—
The joys on which all happiness depends.
Give me the courage and faith to see
That God will bless each day for me.

Strengthen my arms with a purpose true,
Yet keep me humble, honest and sincere.
Give me a strenuous task to do
And urge me on with never-failing cheer;
Then let me rest in the evening sun
And hear the Master say, "Well done!"
